WARRING NATIONS CULTIVATE FRIENDSHIP OF UNITED STATES.

Foresee Strength of Public Opinion When Wilson May be Called Upon to Act as Mediator.

Diplomats at Washington Are Now Using Every Effort to Bring About Sentiment in This Country Favorable to Their Interests, While Administration is Insisting on Strict Neutrality As to All the Powers in the Present Conflict.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 30.—Every Embassy in Washington representing a nation involved in war has been instructed to use all the means at its disposal to cultivate the friendship of the United States. This accounts for the statements and counter statements issued by the diplomatic agents of the belligerents designed to create a public sentiment in the interest of the particular country concerned. Great Britain, France and Russia feel that American opinion is with their arms and ask nothing more than that it be preserved. Japan is anxious that our people shall accept the assurance that she has no intention of extending the area of operations against Germany beyond the China Sea and therefore outside of the region of conflict between her and the United States.

Germany and Austria realize how the public tide is running and through their Ambassadors are seeking to turn it in a direction more favorable to them. There are two compelling reasons for the identical policy belligerents are pursuing; the first of these is designed to secure the active support or at least the benevolent neutrality of the hundred millions of the American people, failing which, to prevent the United States from joining an enemy, the second, which is in the nature of having an anchor to windward, has in anticipation the role the United States will play when the peace negotiations are under way. In spite of the fact that the United States is not a participant in the war, Europe recognizes the possibility that the republic may become involved.

DESIRE OUR NEUTRALITY.

Potentially we are formidable from a military point of view. We are not to be feared. But to range the great resources of this country alongside those of Germany or Austria or Great Britain, Russia, France and Japan, would be to leave no doubt as to the outcome of the struggle. What Great Britain has sought diplomatically has been to make as strong a combination of money and men against Germany and Austria as possible, and that she has been successful is shown by the fact that opposed to the dual alliance are six nations besides herself—Russia, France, Servia, Belgium, Portugal and Japan.

British diplomacy is now endeavoring to induce Italy to take part in the conflict and there is every prospect of its success. German diplomacy worked strenuously to keep Great Britain out of the strife and failed; it urged Italy to take part in accordance with the provisions of the triple alliance and failed again. It has had better success with Turkey and Bulgaria and it is a surprise to diplomats that those two countries have not before now thrown in their fortunes with the dual alliance. It can be stated authoritatively that at the beginning of the conflict the men in power in Berlin expected co-operation from Turkey and Bulgaria. The understanding went so far as to include the welcome of the cruisers Breslau and Goeben, then in the Mediterranean, at Constantinople. Apparently Turkey and Bulgaria were not prepared for the decisive step, Bulgaria holding off because of her real association with Russia.

THE FINAL COMBINATION.

If these two powers become involved, which may take place at any moment, then Greece and Roumania will join the British, France, Russia combination. The cross-moves being made diplomatically in the capitals of the European states still at peace are in evidence in Washington. Each of the belligerents is throwing upon the others the responsibility for the inauguration of the war.

The purpose of this, of course, is to obtain the sympathy of the government and people of the United States. In accordance with this plan, the French Ambassador called upon the President last week and explained how war was forced upon his country by the ambitious German Kaiser. He and the British Ambassador have had frequent conferences with the Secretary of State and other high officials. The German Ambassador has arranged for his own reception by the President on Thursday next. He will take this opportunity to explain why Austro-Hungary found it necessary to impose such harsh demands upon Servia, why the German government acted with Austria and how the uncompromising attitude of the Czar, based upon Slav ambition, forced the war.

Already the Ambassador has advised Secretary Bryan that Russian mobilization compelled Germany to act and he has informed him that it was the aggression of Servia which brought Austria, in order to preserve herself, to act with such vigor.

INFLUENCED BY PUBLIC.

It is self evident that in whatever direction the sympathies of the American government and people lie, its policy will be influenced. Such tendencies naturally incline a government to shade its action in favor of that side which it feels is in the right. Numerous questions already have arisen, numerous questions will arise. Some of them will be of vital importance. Moreover, President Wilson has tendered his good offices with a view to arranging for the restoration of peace, and the United States represents the belligerent nations in all the capitals.

It is almost certain, therefore, that when overtures for peace are made they will be made through the government at Washington. This means that as mediator, it will be our duty to bring the warring nations together by inducing one to give a little here and the other to give a little there. The further fact is to be considered that the attitude of the United States during the peace negotiations will be more important than it is at the present time. The belligerents either will be exhausted or at least their strength will be impaired and this applies to victor as well as to vanquished.

Relieved from the terrible strain they have been undergoing the power of the United States by comparison, will be greater; our advice consequently will have much more weight.

POSITION OF ADMINISTRATION.

The administration properly is taking the position that the United States must not become embroiled in the war. With this as its fixed purpose it does not propose to depart from the policy of strict neutrality, nor does it want the people's sympathies to run too strongly in this or that direction, in order that the action of the government may not be influenced. President Wilson urges Americans to refrain from public expresion of their views so that our neutrality might not be affected. His appeal has met with patriotic response, but it has not affected the foreign representatives, all of whom are talking and working in behalf of their respective countries. In official circles it is suggested that it would be in better taste if foreign representatives would respond to the President's expressed desire but it is impossible to speak to any of them along these lines because of the irritation that would be created.

"In East Prussia," continues the Russian War Office, "the garrisons and fortresses of Thorn and Graudenz, east of Vistula, are taking part with a large number of siege guns. We have taken 3000 prisoners in the operations east of Lemberg(capitol of Galicia.)

Berlin Declares Its Troops Are Energetically Engaging Czar's Army, which Is Said to Have Captured Allenstein and Is Moving on Koenigsberg—Kitchener Praises Part Taken by England, and Asserts Losses Made Up by Reinforcements.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 30 (by wireless to The Associated Press, via Sayville, L. I.)—The latest news from Allenstein, a town of East Prussia, sixty-five miles south of Koenigsberg, indicates that the German army is energetically pressing the Russians . . . (Wireless station unable to read the next few words.) Russian endurance is described as terrific. Corpses lie in heaps on the battlefield. Many prisoners, including one Russian general, were captured.

LONDON, Aug. 30, 4:15 p.m.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Tien-tsin today says Japanese troops have been landed at several points on the coast near Kiao-Chow.

PARIS, Aug. 30, 3:25 p.m.—The Ministry of War announces that it has been decided to call out the class of 1914, which will give at least 200,000 additional troops, and also to call out the active reserve and the eldest classes of the territorial reserve.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A dispatch to the Times from Amiens, France, says that since Monday morning last the German advance has been one of almost incredible rapidity, the Germans never giving the retreating British a moment's rest.

"The first great German effort has succeeded," says the correspondent. "We have to face the fact that the British expeditionary force requires immediate and immense reinforcements. The investment of Paris cannot be banished from the field of possibility."

LONDON, Aug. 31.—From all the far-spread battle lines only bulletins of Napoleonic brevity have come in the last twenty-four hours. History is being made on three great fields of action—along 250 miles of French frontier, on 200 miles of the Austro-Hungarian border and through a wide area of Eastern Prussia.

Silence has covered Austria's war with Servia for several days, but that has become a minor detail of the death struggle of the European powers.

The Russian front is the scene of events of the greatest magnitude, but between the claims and counterclaims of the belligerents there is such a vital difference it is impossible to form an estimate of which way the balance swings.

From Northern France the news appears to follow events by three or four days. The French Embassy announces that there has been hard fighting on the right wing of its northern army near Mezieres since Friday and also that the German forces are making progress in the Lafere district, which apparently means that the French left wing has retired somewhat further, but it is not revealed how near the Germans have approached to the Lafere fortress.

BRITISH REPORTS.

The British reports issued Sunday shows that the British army no longer constitutes the left wing of the allied forces, but that the French have reinforced them on the west. It further says that the French have been fighting hot east and west of them and have brought the German steam roller to a standstill for a time.

The Germans are believed to be forging another steam hammer for a heavy blow and Great Britain anxiously awaits word of a great battle in which her army may be a focal point. How far the Uhlans have spread into French territory it is impossible to learn from the many wild reports fugitives have brought into England, but a rich country with important manufacturing cities is evidently in their grasp.

From Holland and Belgium come circumstantial reports that the Germans are moving part of their army by trains back from Belgium. Apparently these troops are destined to meet the Russians and, if the reports are true, it may mean that the Germans feel strong enough on the French frontier to spare part of their force or that they consider the repulse of the Russian invasion more important than throwing a great army into France.

CHEER NAVAL EXPLOIT.

The British people find cheer in the exploit of their navy, which sank three German cruisers and two destroyers in a daring dash under cover of a fog into the zone of fire of the Heligoland forts, and inflicted a loss of nearly 900 men on the German fleet at a cost of twenty-nine lives and a total of thirty-eight wounded, and damage to three British warships which will be repaired within ten days.

Another raid by German aircraft resulted in the dropping of several bombs into the city of Paris, to which American women tourists persist in going from London in the face of official remonstrances.

Among the German prisoners of the naval station is the son of Admiral von Tirpitz, the German Minister of Marine, to whom the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Churchill, has sent a message of his son's safety, while Count von Schwerin, nephew of the German Emperor, is a prisoner in the hands of the French.

A British colony has played its first part in the war when the German colony in Samoa surrendered to an expedition from New Zealand.

FRENCH LEFT WING YIELDS TO ADVANCE OF GERMANS.

PARIS, Aug. 30, 11 p.m.—"The progress of the German right wing has obliged us to yield ground on our left," says an official statement issued here tonight.

According to Liberte the Germans have penetrated a short distance further on the River Somme.

The British, in conjunction with the French left, have resumed a vigorous offensive. Further west, the French troops have checked the enemy's advance guards. At the other extremity of the line on the Meuse, the French are offering a strenuous and successful defense, which extends along nearly the whole front.

"Our offensive succeeded on our right, but was checked on our left. The Germans gained ground, as announced, toward La Fere. At any rate, we hold firm even under attack—a sure sign of the confidence of our army."

Gen. La Croix, former commander-in-chief of the French army, considers that the Germans are taking great risks in lengthening their lines of communication. He is also military editor of the Temps.

GEN. LA CROIX'S VIEWS.

"One step gained by them in France is a step lost by them against Russia," he said. "My feeling is that the German advance must soon come to an end.

"The Germans continue their turning movement on their right. We have replied by assuming the offensive at Novion Porcein and at Guise. The result is indecisive in the first direction, but our attack will be resumed."

Gen. Pau was in Paris today for a brief visit to the Minister of War. He will return to the front very soon.

The number of popular restaurants for victims of the war is increasing. For 6 cents one may be assured of a wholesome meal.

Count von Schwerin, nephew of the German Emperor, was among the prisoners sent toward the west from the zone of fighting. His hands and feet were chained, because he refused to give his word that he would not try to escape. He had with him a sword given him by Emperor William.

Siege.

PARIS PASTURES SHEEP IN PICTURESQUE PARKS.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—The French capital rushed today its plan to resist a siege by the German army. The city is being turned into an entrenched camp.

Following the decree issued by the Military Governor ordering residents of the district within the city's line of defense forts to desert and destroy their homes within four days, enormous stacks of foods were placed within the state warehouses. The Bois de Boulogne presents a picturesque aspect. It has been transformed into a vast pasture filled with cows and sheep. The animals have been divided into groups and are guarded by reserves wearing the large shirts of drovers. The number of sheep pastured in the parks exceeds 10,000.

The decree calling for the evacuation of the military zone around the forts was a formal notice, although army engineers recently made a tour of the environs of the forts and explained that the residents might be called on to destroy their property, which was deemed an obstruction.

Many of the houses in the line of fire are those of the poor people whose owners are now at the front. Many of these families lack resources and will be without refuge. Nevertheless they took the situation without complaint, although some addressed a petition to the Military Governor, requesting that he use the power vested in him only as a last extremity.

"Utterly Defeated."

ENGLISH SUFFERED SEVERELY AT ST. QUENTIN, SAYS BERLIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(By Way of Copenhagen and London, 6:50 p.m.) The correspondent at German headquarters of the Deutsches Tages Zeitung reports the defeat of the English at St. Quentin, accompanied by great losses. The army, utterly defeated, he says, found its retreat barred by masses of German cavalry.

The correspondent adds:

"It is particularly satisfactory that the English suffered not only the loss of their communication with the northern French army, but also their communication along the road to the west and their depots which, according to French statements, they had established at Maubeuge.

"The army of Gen. von Kluck is in energetic pursuit and in a position to advance further."

Correspondents, describing the events at Louvain, say that a superior court-martial condemned to death numerous individuals who had been seized with arms in their hands. Among these were two clergymen who had distributed ammunition among French irregulars.

Lieut.-Gen. Hopffgarten of the Sixth German Infantry Reserve was slightly wounded. There were 1160 casualties in his brigade. The One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Infantry from Wurtemburg suffered 335 casualties. Among these was Jacob Wetzel of Salem, O., who was slightly wounded. The Eighty-ninth Regiment of Saverne had 181 casualties

The general staff publishes the following.

"Our troops in Prussia, under command of Gen. von Handenberg, after a three days' battle in the district of Gilgenburg and Ortelsburg, East Prussia, defeated a Russian army consisting of five army corps and three cavalry divisions.

"Our troops are now pursuing the enemy by the frontier."

Precedent.

GERMANY ACCEPTS PLAN OF WIRELESS NEUTRALITY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Germany has virtually accepted the plan of the United States for the enforcement of neutrality over wireless communication to belligerent countries.

The plan permits the Germany Embassy, as well as the diplomatic representatives of all other belligerents, to send code messages by wireless, but American naval officers at all stations must be taken into the confidence of senders to establish the neutral nature of communications.

Germany was the leading protestant against the present arrangement, claiming that while her cables had been severed, Great Britain had unrestricted cable communication from the United States.

The American government at first planned to censor the cables, but abandoned the idea, not only because of legal difficulties, but other insurmountable obstacles, deciding to equalize the situation by enabling Germany to secure some other satisfactory means of communication with her Embassy here.

The wireless station at Sayville, L. I., is the only one which can reach Germany.

GERMAN ATTACK HALTED AFTER FOUR DAYS' FIGHT.

British Unmolested Since Thursday, Reports the War Secretary.

The English Army Is Declared Reinforced After Its Desperate Struggle With the Enemy and Ready for the Next Great Encounter—Losses to King George's Troops from Five to Eight Thousand Men.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 30, 4:20 p.m.—After four days of desperate fighting with casualties between 5000 and 8000, the British army in France is rested and ready for the next great battle, according to announcements today by Lord Kitchener, Secretary of State for War. In a statement based on a report of Sir John French, commander in chief of the British force, the Secretary says that the British, after struggling against tremendous odds, retired to a new line of defense, where they have not been molested since Thursday.

Since the fighting ceased, the French on the right and left have brought the German attack to a standstill, it is declared.

THE STATEMENT.

Lord Kittchener's statement, which was issued through the medium of the official information bureau, follows:

"Although the dispatches of Sir John French as to the recent battle have not yet been received, it is possible now to state what has been the British share in the recent operations.

"There has in fact, been a four-day battle—on the 23rd, 24th, 25th and 26th of August. During the whole of this period, the British, in conformity with a general movement of the French armies, were occupied in resisting and checking the Germans' advance in withdrawing to new lines of defense.

"The battle began at Mons on Sunday, during which day and part of the night, the German attack, which was stubbornly pressed and repeated, was completely checked by the British front. On Monday, the 24th, the Germans made vigorous efforts in superior numbers to prevent the safe withdrawal of the British army and to drive it into the fortress of Maubeuge.

"This effort was frustrated by the steadiness and skill with which the British retirement was conducted and as on the previous day, very heavy losses, far in excess of anything suffered by us, were inflicted on the enemy, who, in dense formation and in enormous masses marched forward again and again to storm the British lines.

"The British retirement proceeded on the 25th with continuous fighting, although not on the scale of the previous two days, and by the night of the 25th the British army occupied the line of Cambrai, Landrecies and Lecateau. (Cambrai is a fortified town in the department of the north, forty-two miles north of Lille on the River Scheldt. Lecateau is fourteen miles east by southeast of Cambrai.)

"It had been intended to resume the retirement at daybreak on the 26th, but the German advance, in which no less than five army corps were engaged, was so close and fierce that it was not possible to carry out this intention until the afternoon.

"The battle on this day, the 26th, was of a most severe and desperate character. The troops offered a superb and most stubborn resistance to the tremendous odds with which they were confronted, and at length extricated themselves in good order, though with serious loss and under the heaviest artillery fire. No guns were taken by the enemy except those the horses of which had all been killed, or which were shattered by high explosive shells.

"Gen. French estimates that during the whole of these operations from the 23rd to the 26th inclusive, his losses amounted to 5000 to 8000 men, while on the other hand the losses suffered by the Germans in their attacks across the open and through their dense formation, are out of all proportion to those we have suffered.

"In Landrecies alone, on the 25th, as an instance, a German infantry brigade advanced in close order into a narrow street which they completely filled. Our machine guns were brought to bear on this target from the end of the town. The head of the column was swept away.

"A frightful panic ensued and it is estimated that 800 or 900 dead or wounded Germans were left in this street alone. Another incident which may be chosen from many like it, was the charge of the German guard cavalry division upon the British Twelfth Cavalry brigade, when the German cavalry was thrown back with great losses and in absolute disorder. These are notable examples of what has taken place over practically the whole front during the engagements and the Germans have been made to pay the extreme price for every forward march they have made.

"Since the 26th, apart from cavalry fighting, the British army has not been molested. It has rested and refitted after its extreme exertions and glorious achievements. Reinforcements amounting to double the losses sustained already have joined. Every gun has been replaced and the army is now ready to take part in the next great encounter with undiminishing strength and undaunted spirits.

"Today the news is again favorable. The British have not been engaged, but the French armies, acting vigorously on the right and left, have, for the time being, brought the German attack to a standstill.

"Sir John French also reports that on the 28th the British Fifth Cavalry brigade fought in brillian fashion with German cavalry in the course of which the Twelfth Lancers and the Royal Scots Greys routed the enemy and speared a large number in flight.

"It must be remembered throughout that operations in France are vast and that we are only one wing of the whole field of battle. The strategic position of ourselves and our allies is such that a decisive victory of our armies in France probably would be fatal to the enemy. A continuance of resistance by the Anglo-French armies upon such a scale as to keep in the closest grip the enemy's best troops can, if prolonged, lead only to one conclusion."

Samoan Metropolis.

GERMANS SURRENDER APIA TO NEW ZEALAND FORCE.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The official information bureau announces that Apia, a seaport of Upolu, Samoan Islands, and capital of the German part of the group, surrendered on the morning of August 29 to a British force from New Zealand.

Germany's Samoan territory has been considered her most strategic possessions in the Pacific. Following the dissolution of the agreement of 1889, by which the United States, Germany and Great Britain joined in guaranteeing the neutrality and independence of the Samoan group, a treaty of partition was signed in Washington in 1899.

By this treaty all three powers continued to enjoy equality of commerce, but Great Britain's territorial claims were extinguished and the islands were divided between the United States and Germany. Meridian 171 degrees west was recognized as the dividing line. The two largest islands, Upolu and Savaii, with some smaller members of the group, passed to Germany, and Tutuila and others came under American control.

Tutuila is considered the strategic key of the group. At Pago Pago, a splendid landlocked harbor, the United States has a naval and coaling station.

Apia, seized by the British, is the commercial metropolis of the group, contains numerous fine churches, schools and residences and is the seat of the training college of the London Missionary Society. Robert Louis Stevenson, the novelist, made his home on Upolu for the last years of his life and is buried on one of the mountains.

When Japan entered the European conflict by her declaration of war on Germany and before her explicit declaration that her operations would be confined to the China Sea, the apprehension that she might seize German Samoa and thus gain a foothold between Hawaii and her own coast gave rise to much speculation respecting Washington's attitude in such an eventuality.

Warning.

BOMBS DROPPED IN PARIS BY GERMAN AVIATOR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 30, 11:53 p.m.—A Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says:

"A German aviator flew over Paris this afternoon and dropped five bombs, which fell in the most populous quarter of the city. In one case two women were wounded.

"One bomb fell in front of the shop of a baker and wine merchant at Rue Albouy and Rue Des Vinaigriers; two on Quai De Valmy, one of which did not explode, while the other struck the walls of the Night Refuge, behind St. Martin's Hospital. Two others dropped in the Rue Des Recollets and Rue Marcin, neither of which exploded.

The aviator, who signed himself Lieut. Von Heidssen, dropped manifestos, on which were written:

"The German army is at the gates of Paris; you can do nothing but surrender."

Though startled by this threatening occurrence, Parisians remained tranquil. All have been gradually accustomed to consider much more serious events as possibilities, and the people of the capital are equal to either fortune—hard won success in the north, or a temporary reverse.

The territory over which a German aeroplanist flew is in the northeastern part of Paris and scarcely a mile from the heart of the city. In this district are the big military hospital, the Hospital St. Louis, St. Lazare Prison for Women, the Church of St. Laurent, which dates from the sixteenth century, the North Railroad station, the magnificent Church of St. Vincent de Paul, the Lariboisiere Hospital, one of the largest in Paris, several colleges and several theaters.

BERLIN ACCOUNT OF THE ACTION.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 30 (Via London)—A dispatch to the Wolff Bureau from Berlin, says:

"Yesterday forenoon, during partly foggy weather several small British cruisers and two flotillas, comprising about forty destroyers appeared in the North Sea northwest of Heligoland.

"A desperate isolated engagement ensued between them and our small forces. Small German cruisers steamed westward and on account of the short distance came into contact with several large English cruisers. Thus, the cruiser Ariadne was attacked at short range by two large cruisers of the Lion class and sunk after a glorious fight. The majority of the crew, numbering 250, was saved.

"The destroyer N-87, was bombarded by a small cruiser and ten destroyers and sunk. She went down firing her guns. Her captain, who was squadron commander, was killed. The small cruisers Coeln, and Mainz are missing, and according to Reuter dispatches, were sunk after an engagement with an enemy of superior force. Of their crews eight officers and ninety-one men appear to have been saved by British warships."

GREAT BRITAIN LAID NONE, DECLARES ITS EMBASSY.

American Government Given a Memorandum Stating that Trawlers Were Used by the Kaiser in This Work, Which Resulted in Destruction of an Iceland Vessel.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Great Britain has laid no mines up to this time, according to a memorandum forwarded today to the State Department by the British Embassy here denying a published report that an Iceland trawler had been sunk by an English mine. The memorandum follows:

"His Majesty's government has learned that on or about August 26 an Iceland trawler is reported to have struck a mine twenty-five miles off the Tyne and sunk and at least one foreign newspaper has stated that the mine was English. Although the German action in laying mines has forced the admiralty to reserve to themselves the right to do likewise, the statement already made by His Majesty's government that no British mines have been laid remains absolutely true at this moment. The mines off the Tyne were laid thirty miles to seaward, not, as part of any definite military operation nor by German ships of war, but by German trawlers of which a considerable number appear to have been engaged on this work, the number of one such trawler actually seen to be doing this was A. E. 24, Emden. It would be well if the conduct of those who ordered her to perform this act were carefully considered by neutral powers."

TURKS MAY ENTER EUROPEAN CONTEST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The probable entrance of Turkey into the European struggle as an ally of Germany and Austria and possible uprisings among Great Britain's Mohammedan subjects are forecast in a wireless message to the Germany Embassy here, received today from its Foreign Office in Berlin. The message says:

"Former Minister Burns's speech against Earl Grey's policy has caused a deep impression. News from Constantinople foreshadows the active participation of Turkey against Russia and England.

"Prof. Delbrueck explains the unheard-of unanimity of the Germans by the conviction that this is a struggle for life which has been forced on them.

"The East Prussian authorities are recalling fugitives after the great victory of Gilgenburg."

ANTI-JAP LEAFLET APPEARS IN CHINA.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

PEKING, Aug. 30.—A leaflet based on an alleged statement in Japanese newspapers that Japan intends to make China a dependency was distributed in the streets of Peking today. It stated that every Chinese should sacrifice his life rather than accept domination by Japan. The police attempted to suppress the leaflet and arrested the distributors, some of whom belong to the better class of Chinese.

The Chinese government sent a circular to the foreign embassies and legations today, calling attention to the return of revolutionists to China with the object of taking advantage of the present situation. The circular asks the legations to prevent revolutionists being harbored in the foreign settlements.

TSING-TAU, Aug. 30. — Reports that buildings here and the Tsing-Tau railway bridge have been dynamited by the Germans are incorrect.

There has been no Japanese bombardment of the city as yet. The forts fired several shots today at a Japanese torpedo boat destroyer. The crew of the Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elizabeth has been ordered to return to Tsing-Tau, but has been prevented from doing so by the Chinese authorities, who are endeavoring to maintain neutrality.

KIAO-CHOW FORTS MOST FORMIDABLE.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

TOKIO, Aug. 30.—Military experts here are said not to expect the fall of Kiao-Chow before the end of November except by the voluntary capitulation of the Germans. The defenses are reported to be most formidable and virtually impregnable from the sea. The land fortifications do not follow the usual German methods, but resemble those at Port Arthur. There are three lines of these defenses. The food supply in Kiao-Chow is said to be ample for three months.

BLOOD AND IRON IN LIEGE FIGHT.

Santa Barbara Man Pictures Attack Seen by Him.

Tells How Germans Charged Facing Fearful Fire.

Men Cut Down Like Wheat by Scythe, He Says.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 30.—"Human beings were mown down like wheat before the scythe, when the German army made its first assault on Liege," said C. P. Austin, who has just returned from the actual battleground where the great powers of Europe are now playing their ghastly game of war.

He was in Servia just before Austria declared war on that country; he was in Vienna, Austria's capital, when the formal declaration of war was announced, and was in Paris during the last days before Germany hurled its declaration against France.

He witnessed the first hours of slaughter before the forts of Liege and left the scene of battle only when it became certain that he would be hemmed in unless he hurried away. The air was filled with screaming, bursting shells and shrieks of the dying, when he turned away from the awful carnage.

The forts of Liege stood grim and silent when Austin first viewed them. Some distance off the advance regiments of the German army had come into view. A bugle sang out to charge, and a living mass of armed men moved forward at double quick. At the same time field pieces from different positions out of sight, sent a rain of lead toward the first fort to cover the charging soldiers.

Suddenly tongues of flame poured from the forts, and what an instant before were ranks on ranks of living men was in a flash transformed into a writhing mass, torn by shot and shell. The little handful of survivors charged on, but were bowled over like ten pins, never to rise again. The charge drew the fire of the forts, and the hidden field guns of the enemy centered their fire where it would be most effective.

The artillery duel was continued at long range for a time, and then another onslaught was made, the charging Germans showing amazing courage before the withering fire. Time and again masses of men were torn to pieces, but the fight kept up. The fire of the Germans seemed to have little effect on the fort, but as long as Austin dared to remain he witnessed always the marvelous desperation of the Germans as they hurled themselves to certain death.

Later it was learned the German guns were doing awful havoc in the forts, but the soldiers within fought on like grim death. The capture of the forts was a terrible loss.

"I have read the American newspaper accounts of that fight and if anything they were underdrawn. These press dispatches from Europe are not exaggerated. The pen cannot overstate the horrors of that war. The loss is appalling. Regiments, battalions, brigades are mowed down with a ruthlessness that beggars description," said Austin.

The Germans are sincere in their belief that they have been mistreated by the other nations and they blame Russia. They are enthusiastic to fight. Men, women and children are eager for battle. In Paris Austin found an opposite sentiment. The officials of Paris prohibited all demonstrations. In Austria the war spirit was intense.

The situation with many Americans is very serious. There is a large number of school teachers who went with but a limited amount of money. The enforced stay has left them penniless.

"The war will have terrible results," said Mr. Austin, "and even the victor will be loser. With so many millions of men to feed and all operations shut down, it is the grimest sort of a specter that is facing Europe. The economic waste is awful and the effect will be felt for generations. Some of the people in the different nations are very excited now and following events as closely as possible, and manifesting patriotism.

"The victorious as well as the vanquished will have millions of bereaved and stricken homes. When an inventory has been taken of the little gained in comparison with the loss it is not so difficult to picture reigns of terror when governments will be overthrown."

Eight Destroyers Are Said to Have Started the Attack Upon the German Fleet, Bearing the Brunt of the Battle Until the Cruisers Arrived.

CLOSE TO GERMANS BEFORE SEEN.

HARWICH (Eng.) Aug. 30.—The attack on the German fleet off Heligoland was initiated by British destroyers, according to accounts given by the crews of the vessels which participated. The destroyers got fairly close to the German ships before they were discovered. Then a cannonade from the German ships and forts were opened on them and they gradually drew the German cruisers toward the sea. For a time the Germans were in a position which gave them the advantage, the British destroyers having to bear the brunt of the battle. During one of the hottest phases of the fight two British destroyers got in between two German cruisers, which feared to fire on the Britishers lest they hit each other, while other destroyers engaged a third German cruiser and put her out of action. Finally the British battle cruiser and light cruisers arrived on the scene and quickly put an end to the fight.

TIME THE GREAT FACTOR IN GERMAN'S INVASION.

A Decisive Victory, Which the Kaiser's Troops Have Not Yet Gained, He Declares, Is Necessary for Their Final Success — French Should Avoid Possible Disaster Until Russian Campaign Is in Full Force.

BY AN ASSOCIATE EDITOR OF THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL.

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 30.—The German invasion of France has now reached a point where any delay is dangerous for them. They have successfully pushed the allies back from one position to another, but have not gained the decisive victory that is necessary for the success of their plan of operation. In spite of large losses, the allies still hold an unbroken line running from St. Quentin, twenty-five miles northwest of Laon, eastward to the Meuse River, near Mezieres, and then southeast through Verdun and Nancy to the Vosges Mountains, near St. Die. Here the line turns south along the line of the passes to Belfort and the Swiss border. At only one point along the line do the dispatches show signs of an aggressive movement, so necessary if the lines wish to stop the further advance of the German invasion. This is in the district east of Nancy, where the French aggressive is being stubbornly opposed by the army of Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria.

The most significant feature of the war to date has been not the overpowering advance of the Germans through Belgium, but the defeat of the first French aggressive move into Lorraine. The dictates of careful strategy call for the French to avoid any disaster to their armies until the Russians have had time to push their campaign in force. The general plan of the French campaign calls for gradual withdrawals after causing as much delay as possible when outnumbered.

BRITISH FORCES.

The candid statement as made by the British press bureau today stands the test of a critical comparison with news from other sources. It shows that the British regular army regiments are not yet all at the front. The British forces in the fight at Mons and in the series of rear-guard actions during the fifty-mile retreat to St. Quentin can hardly have numbered more than 125,000. With reinstatements they may now number 150,000 men. Additional troops are coming both from the home battalions and from the colonies, but it is evident that the full British strength will not be placed in the firing line before October.

ALLIES' STRONG LINE.

The line occupied by the allies is naturally a stronger position than that of the Germans. The allies are closer to their reinforcements and their base of supply. The Germans are getting further from their bases of supply and cannot so conveniently move reinforcing troops from flank to flank.

The German invasion has so far been successful at every point, though the advance has been slower than they had planned. No advance could have been faster than the one that they made from Louvain to St. Quentin. They have stuck to the heels of the retreating allies with a tenacity and with strength that shows a well planned forward movement that can be stopped by the allies only by an extreme effort.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

In numbers the Germans and Austrian forces are by now probably inferior to the allies, but the strength of an army does not depend on numbers alone. The steady advance of the Russian army into Germany continues despite a stubborn defense. The investment of Koenigsberg is confirmed and the Russian occupation of Allenstein is reported. This places the Russian advance on a line running from Koenigsberg southwest through Osterode to the vicinity of the Thorn.

The reported crossing of the Vistula River by Russian forces in Prussia will, if confirmed, show that the Russians have completed the first stage of their invasion and that they are about to enter on the invasion of Germany proper, where they will have to face the immense armies of the German reserves.

The Russian successes in Galicia so far more than balance the Austrian successes in Poland. Apparently Austria will soon need all her available forces to oppose the advance of this strong Southern Russian army estimated at 300,000.

BRITISH LOSSES SLIGHT IN HELIGOLAND ACTION.

Twenty-nine Killed and Thirty-eight Wounded Is the Official List of Casualties, but About Seven Hund Germans Are Believed to Have Gone Down With The Ships—Destroyers Play Vital Part in Sea Fight.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Twenty-nine killed and thirty-eight wounded was the price in men paid by the British for the naval action against the Germans in Heligoland waters Friday.

An official statement, issued tonight, says that of 1000 men composing the crew of the warships sunk off Heligoland, only 330 were saved. The British losses are described as follows:

"The light cruiser Arethusa lost Lieut. Eric Westmacott and nine men killed, four men seriously wounded, and Lieut. Robinson and eleven men wounded, but not seriously.

"The torpedo boat destroyer Liberty lost Commander Bertellot and six men killed; one man who has since died from wounds; one dangerously wounded; five seriously wounded, and five slightly wounded.

"The destroyer Laurel suffered ten men killed; one has since died of his wounds; two men dangerously wounded; seven seriously wounded, and two slightly wounded."

HOW IT WAS DONE.

In describing the action the statement says:

"The principle of the operation was a scouting movement by a strong force of destroyers to cut off the German light craft from home and engage them at leisure in the open sea."

After briefly describing the sinking of three German cruisers—the Mainz, Coeln and Ariadne—the statement continues:

"Although only two of the enemy's destroyers were actually observed to sink, most of the other eighteen or twenty boats, rounded up and attacked, were well punished and only saved themselves by a scattered flight.

"The superior gun power and strength of the British destroyers, ship for ship, was conclusively demonstrated. The destroyers themselves did not hesitate to engage the enemy's cruisers, both with guns and torpedoes, with hardihood, and two of them got knocked about in the process.

"Intercepted German signals and other information from German sources confirms the report of Admiral Beatty as to the sinking of the third German cruiser, which now appears to have been the Ariadne.

"The British destroyers exposed themselves to considerable risk in endeavoring to save as many as possible of the German sailors. British officers present vouch for the fact that German officers were firing at their own men in the water with pistols and that several were shot before their eyes.

"Under these peculiar circumstances a destroyer was actually picking up wounded with her boats when she was driven off by the approach of another German cruiser and had to leave two of her boats containing one officer and nine men behind. It was feared that these would be made prisoners, but happily a submarine arrived and brought the British party home.

"As it was not possible to accommodate the thirty Germans in the submarine, they were allowed to return home in the boat in charge of a lieutenant who was not wounded.

"The complements of the man vessels known to have aggregated about 1200 men, all of whom, with the of those thirty and 300 wounded and otherwise, perished.

"Besides this, there was which must have been severe the German torpedo boats and cruisers which did not sink during action.

"The First Lord of the has telegraphed the American bassador at Berlin, desiring him form Admiral von Tirpitz, the man Minister of Marine, that had been saved and had wounded.

The Liberty, one of the destroyers which took part battle off Heligoland, was shell which shattered her tore away part of her bridge all, and then smashed her lights and killed her Lieutenant-Commander Bartellot William Butcher, his signal man.

NOGALES, Aug. 30.—Gens. Villa and Obregon will leave at midnight for Durango to check the threatened revolution among local officials. The Sonora trouble has been peacefully adjusted. Gen. Calles, who has opposed Gov. Maytorena, was recalled from Cananea. He will be removed to another State and given command, and Gov. Maytorena will be recognized as the first chief in Sonora.

Gens. Villa and Obregon will return to El Paso via Tucson and Douglas. Receptions will be given at both places. The party will rest one day in El Paso and then continue to Chihuahua.

A statement was issued by Gen. Villa and Obregon tonight, announcing the terms of agreement signed today. Col. Calles, a Carranza adherent, is removed from office and replaced by Gen. Benjamin Hill. Gov. Maytorena is recognized as Civil Governor of Sonora and will retain command of his guard of Yaqui Indians. Ambition.

AIM OF RUSSIA CONSTANTINOPLE

Outlet from the Black Sea Ambition of the Czar.

Object of Great Britain to Hold Sea Interests.

Scandinavian Powers Hope to Keep Out of War.

Albert Bushnell Hart, professor of history at Harvard, says, under the caption "Why the Nations Fight," in the World's Work Manual of the War:

It is no explanation to say that this King or that Emperor or the other President or Prime Minister wants war. Sovereigns nowadays are, at their strongest, only train-dispatchers who can order a switch thrown in one or another direction. No monarch can go against the spirit of his people. Every country included is united in what is considered natural war. It is not a war of dynasties or statesmen. Every nation threatened every other, hoping thus to frighten its neighbor into giving way without war. The responsibility for the war rests upon no individual and upon no one nation, but upon the interlocking of Europe commercially, territorially and racially, so that one power, after another was drawn in the maelstrom. Perhaps statesmen felt that the cleaning time had come at last; and that the rival claims and pretensions must be settled by the court of war, the only one that executes its own decrees.

TOLSTOI'S VIEW.

Perhaps this war is what Tolstoi thought all wars to be, merely a blind movement of human beings, they know not why, and they know not whither, like a foray of soldier ants. Nevertheless, reasons for war can be found in the make-up of Europe, in the character, in the aims and ambitions of the great powers. The continent of Europe is divided into ten groups of nations. Four of these are the minor groups of the Balkans, Scandinavia, the neutralized powers of Holland, Belgium and Switzerland, and Spain and Portugal. Alongside these and overtowering them in wealth and military strength, are the six great powers, Italy, Russia, Great Britain, France, Austria-Hungary and Germany.

If the war is primarily a fight between the organized Slavs and the Germans, the Balkans are not much interested, since there are only about 5,000,000 Slavs south of the Danube. Emperor William last year called for a larger army and a bigger war chest, because he felt that the armies of the Balkans altered the balance of European military power. If the Balkan powers could have stood together till this year, Austria could not have declared war on Servia. Bulgaria and Greece may easily be drawn into the conflict, particularly if, as seems likely, Turkey makes war on the German side; and when the general peace comes, it must include a settlement of the Balkan question.

The Scandinavian powers are unwilling sharers in the danger of war because two of them control the natural entrance into the Baltic Sea, and the Swedes are convinced that Russia wants to subvert them. Portugal is an ally of England, and proposes to join in the war. Spain may very likely enter the lists if France seems to need aid.

The three little neutralized powers, Belgium, Holland, and Switzerland, have already learned what "neutrality" means between the desperate nations. The Emperor William a few months ago was much pleased by the Swiss maneuvers, because they prove that he could "spare two army corps." The remark meant, of course, that neither France nor Germany could safely force a way through Switzerland. It meant also that the Germans intended to use Belgium as their highway into France, treaty or no treaty, international law or no international law. Holland has no protection from Germany except the troops and ships of the nations that comprise the triple entente.

ITALY.

Italy joined the triple alliance about twenty years ago, because she was then on very bad terms with France. To Germany and Austria the Italian navy and merchant marine were a special attraction.

Italy has three territorial objectives which must largely affect her position: (1) on the other side of the Adriatic Sea, a decided conflict of interest with Austria has developed; (2) Italy desires the extension of her colonies, as Tripoli is at present her only valuable colonial possession. Italy desires to annex Trentino, an Italian-speaking district in the Southern Tyrol, and Trieste, the population of which is Italian. But they might as well attempt to pluck out the right eye of Emperor Francis Joseph as to take Thieste, for it is the only seaport in the Austrian half of the Austrian-Hungarian empire.

RUSSIA'S AMBITION.

Russia has for centuries been a reservoir of compressed political gas, pushing in every direction for an outlet. When Peter the Great came to the throne two centuries ago, his country was almost shut off from the Baltic by the Germans and Swedes—and the Tartars cut him off from the Black Sea. War after war was necessary to gain free access to the Black Sea and the Baltic Sea. Meanwhile the Russians pushed into the thinly settled area of North Asia until they reached the Pacific.

The obvious line of approach to the world's commerce for Russia is through the Bosphorous and the Aegean Sea to the Mediterannean. That route is held by the Turks, who for the last fifty years have been backed up by first the English and French, and then by the Germans.

Russia has gradually torn away fragments of the Turkish empire along the Black Sea and has aided in building Roumania and Bulgaria out of the ruins of Turkish provinces. In 1878 a Russian army marched till it was in sight of the minarets of Constantinople, but the English under Disraeli compelled Russia to give up the fruits of that victory. As the great Slav power, Russia is not always keenly interested in the expansion of small Slav powers; but it has for years urged the policy of pan-Slavism, whatever that may mean. If the issue of German against Slav is clearly raised, as it seems to be in this war, Russian could no more keep out of it than she could forbid her subjects to attend the Greek Catholic Church.

It is a singular fact that till 1914 there never had been a serious war between Russia and Austria. Though the Russians were defeated by the French, English and Piedmontese in 1855, and by the Japanese in 1905, they have in many wars shown military talent and a fine fighting force. Russia is the only nation which without the assistance of allies defeated the great Napoleon.

TO DEMAND CONSTANTINOPLE.

In case of victory, the Russians will certainly demand Constantinople, which means that the Turk would finally be shoved out of Europe; England and France would probably favor that solution of the near-eastern question. If Sweden should be involved in the war, Russia may claim part of that country. Some "rectification of the frontier" might be exacted from Austria. On the other hand, if Russia should be seriously defeated, the Finns and the Poles may rise. As late as 1863, there was an insurrection in Poland. Otherwise it is not likely that the great colossus of Europe will be under any circumstances put in a less favorable position than that which she occupied at the beginning of the war.

England in this contest is not fighting to gain anything new, but simply to hold what she has—first of all her commerce, and there seems a reasonable chance of protecting English merchantmen while German and Austrian must lie in port or be captured. The Japanese have undertaken to look after English interests in Asia.

BOMBARDMENT OF NUREMBERG.

French Embassy States Accusation that Their Aeroplanes Attacked Open City "Is Palpably Unjustified."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The French Embassy issued today a statement saying:

"In an interview attributed to Count Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, it is stated this morning that 'on the first day of the war French aeroplanes bombarded the open city of Nuremburg.'

"French aeroplanes did nothing of the sort. Any one will understand that if they had tried any such attempt that they would not have taken for their aim a city whose fate was absolutely immaterial in the impending struggle.

"The accusation is palpably unjustified."

People With Thin Blood

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism, or to nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers comes on so gradually and stealthily that anyone with a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness, or anaemia, as the medical term is, can be corrected much more easily in the earlier stages than later. It begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale, and breathlessness on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, is noticed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a home remedy that has been most successful in the treatment of diseases caused by thin blood. With pure air and wholesome food these blood-making pills afford the correct treatment when the symptoms described are noticed. A former sufferer from anaemia says: "I was emaciated and did not have a particle of color. I had severe headaches, had no ambition and could just drag around." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills quickly restored appetite, flesh and health. A full statement of this case with directions regarding diet will be found in the booklet, Building Up the Blood," sent free by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

CORRESPONDENTS GIVEN HARD RAP.

Statements in Newspapers Declared Distorted.

Kitchener Report Reassures the British Public.

Demoralization of English Army Is Denied.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The official information bureau, accompanied by publication of Lord Kitchener's statement on the situation of the British army at the front, took today a rap at the correspondents whose stories purport to be made up of portions of experiences on the battle line.

The bureau says:

"No correspondents are at the front and the information, no matter how honestly sent, is therefore derived at second or third hand from persons who often are in no condition to tell coherent stories and who are certain to be without the perspective which is necessary to construct or understand the general situation.

"It is hoped that the general statement issued tonight will dissipate any apprehensions and restore the necessary perspective to the recent operations."

The British public has been reassured by the statement.

IRRESPONSIBLE REPORTS.

Earlier in the day the country received a distinct shock through stories of disaster to and demoralization of the British army, which were published in some of the London papers. A correspondent evidently had been listening to startling tales from wounded stragglers behind the lines, who gave the impression that the British troops had been cut to pieces, that their organization was gone and that they were without supplies or communications.

Lord Kitchener's report of Field Marshal French's announcement put a new face on the situation. According to all official and unofficial reports the Germans came upon the small British army with overwhelming force and rolled up the infantry in solid masses time after time, spending the men lavishly and bringing into action a great weight of artillery with machine guns mounted on armored cars.

BRITISH GALLANTRY.

There were cavalry charges and counter-charges during the four days' battle in which the British commander asserts his troops displayed great gallantry.

All accounts from the soldiers, even from the excited correspondents, agree that the British soldiers are not downhearted and are confident of their ability to hold their own against anything like equal numbers of Germans. Although the country has known for a week that many of the soldiers are buried on French and Belgian soil and other thousands are in hospitals, there is no outcry for names, but a general willingness to wait if the interest of the army requires it. A few newspapers have criticised the extreme secrecy which the government maintains, but there is nothing approaching a clamor against it.

INFANTRY CRITICISED.

The few soldiers who have been brought to English hospitals in the front are pledged to do no talking about the war for two weeks, and only some personal experiences have been related. No one disparages the bravery of the Germans, but all criticise the methods of the German infantry. Officers who have seen the German maneuvers have said that the infantry would be mowed down if employed in the same tactics in actual battle. But they were disposed to think that the maneuvers were largely for show. One soldier, speaking of the recent fighting, said:

"If the British losses were heavy the German losses must be enormous. The German infantry always advanced in heavy masses. They were like a moving wall of men. Our fire simply slaughtered them. We did not care for their infantry, but their artillery was deadly in its precision. Nearly all our wounded were hurt by shells, but those suffering from rifle shots were chiefly hit in the legs."

GREAT MASSES OF GERMANS.

According to another soldier the Germans came up in thousands.

"I remember looking up," the soldier said, "and seeing ranks and ranks of them coming along. We swept away one rank and there was another. We swept that away and a third was waiting behind it. On they came over the bodies of their comrades, solidly, like wooden soldiers, and as regular as a clock."

The British soldiers think their South African experiences helped their infantry greatly. On the veldt they became experts at taking cover and entrenching themselves. There are enough veterans in all the regular regiments to show the younger men how to take care of themselves in a fight.

WAR CAUSED BY AMBITION.

KAISER STRONG BELIEVER IN PAN-GERMANISM.

World's Work in Its Manual of European Conflict Declares Great Britain Prefers Russian Supremacy to that of Germany, While France Wants Revenge.

Under the caption "The Causes of the War" the World's Work says in its Manual of the War in Europe:

The nations of Europe had each marked the course of their ambitions—and these courses crossed. The Kaiser's government believes in the Pan-Germanism that means German influence extending through the Balkans to the Aegean Sea, Germany in control of the Dutch and Belgian harbors, in a further development of the German colonial empire, in the maintenance of the divine right of kings, and German supremacy on the sea. Russia, too, has a constructive programme. Some day Russia hopes to reach the open sea on the Scandinavian Peninsula, to gain access to the Mediterranean either by ownership or control of the Balkans and to open the Black Sea by the possession of Constantinople. Nor has Russia given up hope of an open port on the Pacific and the control of Manchuria wrested from them by the Japanese. Moreover, Russia even more than Germany is the stronghold of autocracy. The Russian and German ambitions only clash vitally in the Balkans.

ENGLAND ON DEFENSE.

In contrast to these constructive desires of Germany and Russia, England has chiefly a defensive attitude. Her empire encircles the globe and she is in command of the sea. She would like to maintain the balance of power as it is. She feels that she would not be safe if Germany had the ports of Belgium or Holland, nor would she welcome her present ally, Russia, in Norway or Sweden. England's efforts to keep any strong European power out of Constantinople maintained the Turk in Europe beyond his time. She does not want a Russian or German naval base at Constantinople to threaten her Mediterranean supremacy. Of the two, however, she prefers Russia to Germany. In the Far East England is allied with Japan, which blocks the Russian advance into Southern Manchuria. Moreover, liberal England believes very little in the autocracy either of Germany or of Russia. But though Russia is still the same Russia in aims against which Kipling warned England when he wrote: "Make ye no truce with Adam-zad, the bear that walks like a man," it is not the same Russia in activity. Since the Russian-Japanese war, Germany, not Russia, has threatened the balance of power which England cherishes.

With one great exception France, like England, is also content with what she has and is busy with its development; and since the French and English soldiers met at Fashoda on the upper Nile in 1898 their ways have not crossed. The one great exception to the content of France has been the German possession of Alsace-Lorraine. France wants revenge for 1870-71, and French republicanism is not a good neighbor to German autocracy.

AIMS OF RIVALS.

Germany's aims, therefore, come into vital conflict with the aims of Russia, France, and England. That is why England has made a truce with the Bear and joined with its ancient enemy, France.

Germany's ambitions have isolated her from the rest of Europe, except Austria. In Austria, Germany has found "a brilliant second" for its policies, although the second has of late tried to play first part. England and Russia oppose Austria, for they feel that it is playing the German game in the Balkans. Italy, too, has added to a historic animosity a dislike of Austria's Balkan policy, for Italy itself wants not only the ports of Albania, but the Austrian ports of Trieste, Pola, and Fiume, at the head of the Adriatic.

Such are the conflicting national ambitions which have for a decade kept Europe talking of the war, which is now upon us.

Amiens Correspondent Sends Pessimistic Dispatch.

German Wave Is Too Strong for Allies, He Says.

Declares Best Hope Lies in Arrival of Pau's Army.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A pessimistic view of the situation of the allies is taken by the Amiens correspondent of the Weekly Dispatch. Telegraphing under yesterday's date he says:

"This is a pitiful story which I have to write. The time for secrecy is past. What you know in England may be something like the truth, but I write with the Germans advancing incessantly while all the rest of France believed they are still held near the frontier.

"The best hope of holding them lies in the hourly expected arrival of an army from Alsace under Gen. Pau, who so brilliantly retrieved the blunder at Muelhausen. So far the Germans have carried all before them, partly by sheer weigh of numbers and partly by a deadly hail of bullets from their numberless Maxim guns.

"Just now an American Red Cross volunteer inquired from the official in command here how he could motor to Paris. 'Take any road,' was the reply. 'You are covered by between 200,000 and 300,000 men.'

"The first inkling that I had that the Germans had penetrated for into France was this morning, when, on the road here from Dieppe, in a village where a banner inscribed 'Honor to the British army' hung across the road, I met the Royal Engineers columns with the pontoons which had been at . . . (deleted by censor.) From some of the men I learned that orders had been received for the British base to be shifted with all possible dispatch to . . . The staff had left. The artillery had left. Everyone had gone except the army medical corps and they were leaving. There was only one possible explanation. The men greeted me with wan smiles because they saw I was English.

" 'Your artillery saved us' they declared. 'The enemy came early Wednesday morning, outnumbering us hugely. We are only territorials. In the nick of time your artillery galloped into position and shelled the Germans away. But for them we should be—well, not here.'

"What had happened to . . . (deleted) since, they did not know, but it must have fallen since the Germans were well this side of it. While we talked we could hear the guns also talking.

"Later I motored out on the road to . . . (deleted.) Here, as on the other round, refugees packed in farm carts, riding bicycles and driving traps were hurrying, all frightened and anxious. Then from the direction of . . . (deleted) crawled a long ammunition train.

" 'How is it going?' I inquired of a friendly sergeant. He shrugged his shoulders. That was all. An artillery duel was going on close on by . . . (deleted.) The Germans were reported to have stronger batteries. At dusk the French were falling back.

"The tidal wave of German troops which has swept over Northeastern France will spread still further unless a miracle happens. Our small British force could not stand before a volume so powerful and immense. Our force has been scattered all over the country so I learned from officers and men.

"The headquarters staff has been moved hastily a long way back from . . . (deleted) and cannot stay long where it is. Some army men have been hard put to it for food in the last few days. One British officer who was brought here had had no food for four days.

"The retreat of the British aeroplanes made a wonderful sight. Between thirty and forty passed over . . . (deleted) on Wednesday morning, flying very high and toward the south.

"I have aimed at telling a plain tale of the misfortune of the British troops, but they were set to an impossible task. Let us try not to hush up the facts. Let us face them and strengthen our resolve to see the war through whatever happens."

TERRIFIC ENGAGEMENT IN VALLEY OF MEUSE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 31, 2:30 a.m.—The Daily Telegraph's Amiens, France, correspondent wiring Saturday night, says:

"Two instances of serious fighting have been reported in this vicinity during the past twenty-four hours. The first is a stiff engagement, indicating that the Germans are really uncomfortably close. This engagement is still in progress.

"The second engagement was a cavalry attack by Ulans. They were repulsed after liberal treatment administered to them by the French artillery."

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Amiens, dated Saturday morning says:

"So far the German advance has not come within ten miles of this city. It was pitiable to see the unhappy villagers, turned out of their houses at Albert, making their way here with such of their possessions as they were able to carry.

"I have not been able to discover whether it was Gen. Pau's army from Muelhausen or other fresh troops which checked the German advance, but for the moment, Gen. Pau is the popular hero here. All seem to believe that he will turn the tide."

Another Amiens dispatch to the Daily Chronicle says:

"The French retirement before the German horde advancing from Namur down the Valley of the Meuse was masterly. The Germans won their way at a cost in human life as great as in defeat; yet they won their way.

"For France that retirement is as glorious a story as anything in her annals.

"It was nearly a fortnight ago that the Germans began concentrating their heaviest forces on Namur, pressing southwards over the Meuse Valley. After the battle of Dinant, the French army was heavily outnumbered and fell back gradually in order to gain time for reinforcements to come to its support.

"The French artillery was posted on the heights above the river and swept the advancing Germans with a storm of fire. On the right bank the French infantry was entrenched, supported by field guns and Mitrailleuses. The infantry did deadly work, holding the positions with great tenacity and dropping back only to occupy new positions just as doggedly.

"The Germans showed heroic courage; they were reckless of their lives. The most desperate fighting took place for possession of the bridges, but the French engineers succeeded in blowing them up one after another as the French retired to the south. Thirty-three bridges were destroyed in this way.

"The fighting extended for a considerable distance on both sides of the Meuse and many side lines engagements were fought by the cavalry. There was a memorable encounter at Marville, where 5000 Frenchmen resisted 20,000 German infantry. Despite their inferior numbers, the French dash was so splendid that they beat back the enemy for twelve hours. It was only for fear of getting too far from the main army that the French then retired.

"In accordance with the general plan decided upon by the French general staff, the Germans were allowed gradually to press their way southward along the Meuse as far as Mezieres. This is in the neighborhood of Sedan. The French were determined that there should be no repetition of the tragedy which occurred in this valley in 1870 when the French army was caught in a trap here. So the town of Charleville, across the river from Mezieres, was evacuated last Monday and the French took up magnificent positions commanding the town and bridges.

"Guns mounted on the heights and in abandoned houses were awaiting the enemy's arrival. Among these guns were ninety-five which had been taken from the enemy during the retreat up the river.

"The German advance reached Charleville Tuesday. They were allowed to ride quietly across the bridges into an apparently deserted town. Then suddenly their line of retreat was cut off.

"Three of the bridges were blown up simultaneously by contact mines and the guns hidden on the heights began playing on the German cavalry. It was for a while sheer massacre, but the Germans quickly formed and began fighting with extraordinary tenacity, mounting their quick-firers and replying shot for shot.

"When the main German advance came down the valley, the French artillery raked them with a terrific fire, but the Germans with incredible coolness, began erecting pontoon bridges, and although hundreds of men died on the bank, they succeeded in their endeavor while their artillery searched the hills for the hidden gunners, quickly forcing the French to retire."

"This long retirement by the French has enabled the allies to draw closer together and to form a solid front sweeping in a crescent. On the map of course it is an unhappy thing to see the whole of France north of Amiens open to the enemy, but one should realize that in order to lure the Germans to their own destruction it was almost necessary to maneuver them into the position they now occupy.

"The success of Gen. Pau shows that the allies now are again taking the offensive.

"The long-drawn-out nature of this combination emphasizes the difficulty of grasping the significance of the whole campaign from isolated incidents. The psychological effect of it being mixed up with a merely local panic or disorderly retreat is tremendous.

"The feeling in Amiens when I reached that city was an illustration of this panic. Reports were current that the railways had been cut and that there had been mysterious movements of troops out of the town barracks. Hardly a man in uniform was to be seen. Only a few persons realized what this meant—namely, that Amiens was being made an undefended town, open to the Germans whenever they wished it."

General Summary.

GIVE AND TAKE OF WAR IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

THAT the French lines are still falling back before the German advance is indicated by an official statement issued by the French War Office, which says that the programme of the German right wing has obliged the French left to yield ground.

Earl Kitchener, the British Secretary for War, gives in detail the part played by troops in the operations in Belgium and France. These operations extended from August 23 to August 26, and the British losses numbered in the neighborhood of 6000.

The condition and spirits of the British troops at the front are described as excellent and reinforcements have been sent up to more than fill the gaps created by the casualties.

A German aviator has appeared over Paris, and was engaged Sunday in dropping bombs over the city. Several of the bombs failed to explode, according to accounts and the only two persons injured were women.

Paris is preparing for a siege should the lines opposing the Germans be broken. Enormous stocks of food have been placed in the state warehouse and sheep and cattle in vast numbers have been herded in the Bois de Boulogne.

A British official statement says that of the 1200 men composing the crews of the five German warships sunk off Heligoland, only 338 were saved.

A German dispatch says the German army is energetically pressing the Russians in the neighborhood of Allenstein, East Prussia.

Treaties as the Cause of Great War in Europe.

The Powers Linked Together Like Powder Magazine.

Conflagration Almost Forecast by Newspaper.

Writing under the caption "The Alliances That Made the War," Rollo Ogden, editor of the New York Evening Post, says in the World's Work Manual of the war:

There may be doubt who lighted that match that has wrapped Europe in a flame of war, but there can be no question what constituted the material of conflagration. It was the grouping of the great powers. They were as a series of powder magazines so connected that when one was exploded the others blew up. Fire started in the Triple Alliance set the Dual Alliance ablaze; and the Triple Entente speedily showed that it, too, was highly inflammable. The verdict of history will agree with the calmest contemporary judgment in holding that but for these various alliances, these balancings of the nations, these arrangements, treaties, understandings, Europe could not have been suddenly turned into a vast shambles.

It would be hard to find a swifter conception or clearer statement of this truth than in the columns of a leading organ of German public opinion, on the very eve of the war. The Frankfurter Zeitung of July 27 had a searching analysis of the perilous situation created by the savage ultimatum of the Austrian government to Servia. The significance of that act penetrated the European mind much more quickly than it did the American. This was partly because the press of the United States was badly served by its foreign correspondents in that affair. They cabled almost nothing about it, even days after every intelligent newspaper in England, in France, in Russia and in Germany was expressing a sense of the terrible danger confronting Europe. It was again a case (as with the tell-tale premonitions of the Balkan War) when those who supply European news to the American press found it easiest to ignore the whole matter, as simply another of those far-off, tedious quarrels in Southern Europe in which the public of the United States took no interest. Near by, however, the alarm was instant and acute.

To go back to the Frankfurter Zeitung's article of July 27, it began by saying that the Austrian demand on Servia would be a severe test of "the existing systems of European politics." It immediately perceived that the Triple Alliance (Germany, Austria, Italy,) would be strained in its last fiber. It was in no doubt that the Dual Alliance (Russia, France) would at once vibrate in response, and that, the Triple Entente (Russia, France, England,) also beginning to function, the nerves of all Europe would be racked. Then would come the answer to the question whether these alliances were really a splendid "instrument of peace."

As such they have long and loudly been boasted, but the intelligent Liberal newspaper of Frankfort proceeded to say: "We have not shared that belief, but on the contrary have firmly maintained that European peace did not depend upon an equipoise of powers in groups, but upon the broad basis of a justly ordered union of the peoples."

Then it added that the proof as to who was right would soon be forthcoming. If the Triple Alliance prevented war, it would be truly "rich in blessings to European politics," but if not, it would be seen to be "a chain binding the peace of Europe to the will of persons and cliques in whom the citizens of states governed in the spirit of liberty could place small trust."

Italy's motive for joining the Triple Alliance has always seemed a little obscure. How could Bismarck persuade her to clasp hands with her hereditary enemy, Austria? It has been said that he did it by playing upon her vanity. Italy was flattered by being invited into the circle of the great powers. But there was another and a real inducement, which Bismarck knew how to lay before Italy in attractive form. She was jealous of French expansion in North Africa. Against that she could fortify herself by entering the Triple Alliance. And when the time came for her descent upon Tripoli, she would have, as she did have two years ago, a free hand. This must have been the chief consideration in the mind of those Italian statesmen who have for a generation held Italy true to what seems for her an unnatural and awkward alliance. Now that she has achieved the main end she aimed at, it is not strange that she has been showing signs of coldness to an alliance that could hereafter mean for her only small benefit and great burdens.

Bismarck was perfectly frank in stating the object he pursued in forming and maintaining the Triple Alliance. His reasons were partly dynastic. The houses of Hohenzollern and Hapsburg he would firmly establish beyond the shock of republican or socialistic agitation. The Romanoffs he would have gladly included, had not Russia drawn apart. He feared that there would be a great struggle between the two European tendencies which Napoleon called the Republican and the Cossack. Bismarck was for the system of order on the monarchial basis, and it was to stiffen and strengthen it that he created the Triple Alliance. But he had also a military purpose—a defensive purpose, as he contended. He desired to add to the fighting power of Germany the armies of Austria and Italy, in such a way that the empire could be free from danger of attack, and might enter securely upon that work of national development and increasing influence in the councils of Europe which he thought of as belonging by right to the greater Germany which he had builded. And it is certainly a high tribute to his prescient and puissant statecraft that this creation of his genius should have endured, with scarce a change in form, till this day. The Triple Alliance has been regularly renewed, at each period of expiration, as if it were one of the fixed institutions of European politics.

It is not to be supposed that the Triple Alliance was an alliance in everything. Each country in it was free to act as it chose in those matters which lay outside the agreed scope of common action. The result is that there has often appeared to be, in questions not exclusively European, a regrouping of the powers as if in utter disregard of the Triple Alliance. One such case arose at the close of the war between Japan and China. In opposition to England, Russia and France were closely drawn together with Germany in protesting against the proposed cession of territory to the Japanese. This they did indeed prevent. At that period both Russian and French diplomacy was strongly anti-English; and an observer at that time knowing nothing of what had gone before, would have concluded that the real Triple Alliance, if one existed at all, was between France, Russia and Germany! So like a dissolving view does the whole system of European friendships and alignments often appear.

No student of European politics could, for example, have predicted anywhere between 1899 and 1903 that Europe would in a few years see, over against the Triple Alliance, and supplementary to the dual alliance, a triple entente uniting France, Russia and England and bidding fair, as it does at this moment, to refashion the whole political system of Europe. This was, given the past history and diverse interests of the countries composing it, an even stranger mating of opposites than the alliance which bound Italy and Austria up in the same bundle. That England could act in hearty unison with France seemed only less unlikely than that she could so act with Russia. But she actually joined both in the triple entente. Its nature has all along been indefinite; its scope has not been known accurately by the other European powers; it has been, as it were, the mystery of diplomacy. There was no absolute treaty underlying it. This was made certain by the statement within a year of the British Prime Minister, in answer to a question put to him in the House of Commons, that England had not bound herself by treaty to act jointly with France and Russia. This left the matter still very much in the dark. The first clear light was given by Sir Edward Grey just before the war broke out. He explained that, while no specific and binding agreement had been made with France, an exchange of notes had taken place between the two governments. The purport of them was that if either country were attacked by a third, the two would consult together for common defense. Sir Edward had nothing to say to the Commons about Russia. But in the official publication of diplomatic correspondence which he authorized shortly afterward, was a telegram from the Czar to King George urging him "to stand by" Russia and France. This would imply that all three were placed very much on the same basis by the triple entente. Not a formal pact, it was of the nature of "a gentleman's agreement." All depended upon the good will and good faith in which it was lived up to. In the result, it appears to have been as effective as an actual alliance cemented by treaty; having most of the advantages of the latter without some of the embarrassments.

A. L. Dennis, being duly sworn, declares that he is and has been for twelve years Superintendent of Circulation of the Los Angeles Times; that the above detailed statement of circulation for the month of July, 1914, is correct, and shows the circulation of The Times for each day of the month named.

A. L. DENNIS,
Superintendent of Circulation, The Times.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of August, 1914.

[Seal] T. L. CHAPIN,
Notary Public in and for the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other local newspaper.

MILITIA ORDERED TO QUIET BUTTE.

Dynamiting by Unionists Arouses Gov. Stewart.

State Troops Mobilizing at Helena for Duty.

In Meantime All the Mines Are Heavily Guarded.

BUTTE (Mont.) Aug. 30.—Mines of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company and of other large companies operating in this district are tonight under guard as a result of dynamiting early today of the employment office at the Parrot mine, operated by the Anaconda company.

News of Gov. Samuel V. Stewart's order mobilizing at Helena the State troops for duty at Butte has been withheld from the local public for fear the miners would attempt reprisals. The miners have heard rumors of the troops' coming, but they have heard such reports before and do not credit the report of the militia mobilization at Helena. They base their confidence that today's report is groundless upon the belief that Gov. Stewart would not risk sending so small a force as 800 militiamen against the miners, who number, according to the roster of the Butte Mine Workers' Union, 8200. It is said upon apparently good authority that many outside "gunmen" are in Butte.

The State troops are expected to arrive late tomorrow, but in the meantime there is reported to be in the city a large number of peace officers from near-by cities. The guards at the stores have been strongly reinforced since this morning's dynamiting.

Plans for the entry of the militia into Butte are being kept secret, as it is feared that if the approach of the trains containing soldiers became known, mines will be laid. Miners have long been open in their threats against the militia, whom they profess to believe they would have no trouble "in cleaning up."

Business men and the mining officials are making every effort to secure the presence of Federal troops in Montana. Numerous telegrams tonight were sent to Montana's delegation at Washington urging that they prevail upon President Wilson to send regulars either to Ft. Missoula or Ft. Harrison at Helena to be ready in case it is found that the militia was unable to cope with the situation in Butte.

The Anaconda Copper Company issued a notice today requiring all persons not having urgent business at the mines of the company, particularly after dark, to remain away from the vicinity of the mines of the company.

The city was quiet tonight, but the streets were crowded. The feeling is tense.

President "Muckie" MacDonald of the Butte Mine Workers' Union, issued today a statement denying that any of the mine workers were responsible for the dynamiting of the Anaconda Company's property.

Several rifle shots and a blast were heard early today, but the police have not been able to locate them.

The dynamited structure was of brick and two stories high and one side was completely blown out and a hole torn through the top large enough to admit a street car.

The Anaconda Company had installed the "rustling card" system whereby miners before they were permitted to apply for work had to possess a "rustling card," and to centralize the system. The office issuing these cards for the mines of the Anaconda Company was established at the Parrot mine. The system is said to have aroused considerable opposition among the members of the old Western Federation of Miners. has offered $10,000 reward for the ar- has offered $10,000 regard for the arrest of the dynamiters or for information which will lead to their apprehension.

RIOT AT PROVIDENCE.

Following Protest Against High Food Prices, Stores and Goods Are Wrecked in the Italian Quarter.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) Aug. 30.—Stores were wrecked in the Italian colony and a large quantity of foodstuffs were destroyed last night during a riot which followed meetings of protest against the increased priced of food. Six persons, four of them policemen, were injured by missiles, but none seriously.

Every store front on one block was wrecked and foodstuffs were thrown into the street.

LUMBER FREIGHT RATES.

Advances Are Proposed from Southern Points to Ohio and Territory to North and Northwest.

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Aug. 30.—General advances in freight rates on lumber from Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas points are proposed in joint tariff sheets mailed yesterday to the Interstate Commerce Commission by tariff agents of railroads entering the Mississippi Valley.

The advance would become effective October 1, and would affect shipments to Ohio points and to points in Iowa, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and what is known as western trunk line territory.

Rates on lumber from Memphis to territory affected would be increased approximately $15 a carload. From Mississippi the increase would vary from $5 to $25 a car.

It is said southern lumber men will fight the proposed increases.

THE WEATHER BACK EAST.

Temperature at Chicago Rises Again to Summer Heat; Michigan Experiences Some Heavy Rains.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Aug. 30.—Summer heat descended again today over the lakes region and all of the Southwest. Chicago's temperature rose from 64 last night to 85 today. The Ohio Valley was two degrees cooler and St. Louis one degree higher. Eastern States also warmed up about five degrees and Western Canada reports 86. Some of the mountain States are near the frost line. Michigan had heavy rains, but the rest of the country was practically dry.

Dies While Visiting Parents.

Warren Rodney, son of Brig.-Gen. George B. Rodney and Jane W. Rodney of No. 1775 Sycamore avenue, died last evening at the Sisters' Hospital after a short illness. He arrived in Los Angeles but a few days ago from his home in New York City for a visit with his parents. Just following his arrival he was taken seriously ill and gradually grew worse. Mr. Rodney was 43 years of age. The funeral will be held at the family residence in Hollywood tomorrow at 11 o'clock.

Miss Wright Heard from.

Miss Beulah Wright, dean of oratory in the University of Southern California, who was in Europe three months and out of communication with her relatives here for several weeks, arrived in New York City Saturday on the Olympic, according to a telegram received yesterday by her father, a real estate dealer of No. 344 St. Andrews Place. Miss Wright was a member of a party of eleven tourists who became separated after the outbreak of the war. She said in her message that she was the first one of the party to reach America.

From Luxury to Jail.

The triumphant journey eastward of Marcell S. Seeley, 24 years old, was interrupted yesterday morning when Detectives Bowe and Beaumont invaded his drawing-room at the Arcade station and arrested him as a fugitive. He is wanted in San Francisco for issuing a worthless check and for alleged embezzlement of clothes valued at $250. Young Seeley was outfitted in tip-top fashion and the bags which the detectives commandeered were of the most expensive make. The fugitive was traveling under a ticket which gave him every de luxe privilege the train afforded.

BUSY ON THE GRADE.
[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SEELEY, Aug. 30.—About 150 men and several mule teams are busy on the grade on the last stretch of desert on the San Diego and Arizona Railroad before it commences to make the ascent over the divide. They are now at work near the foot of Devil's Canyon close to the foothills. It is expected by the contractors that the present contract will be completed in a few weeks. The rails are now laid to within a mile of the end of the completed right of way and the work trains are being operated over that part of the road every day, carrying additional material to the front, and supplies for the grading camps. There is at this time no reason to question that the road will be finished from San Diego to the heart of the valley early in the coming year.

TOPANGA CANYON CLOSED.
[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 30.—Starting tomorrow morning the Topanga-Canyon road will for four months be entirely closed to all traffic on account of the work on the new wide road which has been under way for some time. The closing is made necessary by the large amount of blasting that will be done in the work of widening the road and making it less steep. The canyon stage made its last trip today and for four months there will be no parties carried up or down the beautiful canyon pass. The mail carrier will go back to the old Santa Ynez trail, which was used in the days gone by when only a few ranchers were living in the canyon. Now all residents of the upper canyon will have to make the trip to town via Calabasas and the San Fernando Valley, coming into Los Angeles and Santa Monica through Hollywood.

Nervy.

MUCH LOOT FOR MASKED THIEF.

DRAWS STOLEN PISTOL ON MAN WHO SURPRISES HIM.

Makes Getaway With Thousand Dollars Worth of Jewelry by Jumping from Roof of Back Porch While Crowd in Front of House Gathers.

During the absence of the family last night, a masked burglar entered the home of J. Houze, a real estate dealer, living at No. 2155 West Adams street, and, although an immediate alarm was given, the marauder escaped with jewelry valued at nearly $1000.

The only person on the premises at the time was F. Piner, an employee, who was reading in a room downstairs. Knowing the family was away, Mr. Piner did not answer the call of the door bell, but his suspicions were aroused a few minutes later when he heard the sounds of footsteps on the floor above.

While making an investigation, Mr. Piner suddenly was confronted by the burglar armed with a revolver, which he had stolen from Mr. Houze's bedroom, and instead of obeying the demand to throw up his hands, he dashed through the darkness to his room, where he obtained his revolver and began firing in the air to summon the police.

Several persons passing in an automobile were halted by Mr. Piner and were requested to telephone to the police, but the occupants of the machine believed they were dealing with a madman and hurried away.

Policeman James Bean happened to be passing at the time and went in search of the thief, but found that he had gone, leaving behind the stolen revolver and a jimmy. A brown handbag subsequently was discovered in the back yard, as well as footprints showing that the burglar had jumped from the top of the rear porch, a distance of fifteen feet, after which he made his way over an alley fence while the people in front were trying to attract the attention of an officer.

Upon the return of the Houze family an inventory was taken with the result that the following articles were reported as missing; a valuable gold watch and chain, a gold handkerchief holder, two sets of costly cameos, a number of sets of cuff buttons and stick pins, and other pieces of jewelry of minor value.

Motorcycle Officer Cato of the University Station was detailed to make a search of the neighborhood, but at a late hour no trace of the thief had been found.

BURGLARS WANTED IN.

Frightened Away By Shooting After Two Efforts in Short Time to Enter House.

For the second time within twenty-four hours, burglars last night tried to enter the house at No. 935 Edgeware road, occupied by J. L. Robertson and Sidney Harris, but were apparently frightened away when Harry Stark, a grocer, living across the street, fired his revolver to attract the police.

According to a statement made to the police, Mr. Stark saw two men accompanied by a woman standing near the corner and a few minutes later the same men, he believes, tried to force open a window with a jimmy. Entering his store at No. 956 Edgeware road, Mr. Stark obtained his revolver and began firing. At the fourth shot the burglars suddenly fled and a moment later the woman also had disappeared.

Late Saturday night burglars entered the same house and stole a gold watch and several persons assert that the same trio were seen on that occasion.

The only description of the criminals available indicates that one of the burglars wore a large Texas sombrero and the woman lookout was dressed in a light suit.

CHIEF CLEW TO NELMS MYSTERY SOUGHT HERE.

Cursing, Innes Is Rushed Through City on Way to San Antonio.

Detectives Search Los 'Angeles for Trace of a Mysterious Trunk and Box Shipped from Alleged House of Death After Disappearance of Wealthy Atlanta Sisters.

"I AM NOT guilty. Upon my arrest in Oregon I made an emphatic denial of all the charges against me. Further than that I have nothing to say in regard to this alleged crime."

Swearing freely, Victor Innes, charged with the murder of Mrs. Eloise Nelms Dennis and her sister, Beatrice Nelms, of Atlanta, made that statement emphatic yesterday morning in a tourist sleeper on the Sunset Limited at the Arcade depot. He and his wife, who is held as an accomplice, were in the custody of a deputy Sheriff of San Antonio, who is taking them there for trial. Twin children, aged 5, claimed by them as their own flesh and blood, but who are alleged by the officers to be foundlings, were with them. The party left immediately on the same train. They were here but fifteen minutes.

In another car was Marshal Nelms, brother of the missing sisters, who has devoted his entire time and spent an enormous sum in a country-wide search for them.

P. W. Mohan, Los Angeles manager of the Burns Detective Agency, and two assistants met the party and from Marshal Nelms received information which may result in important local developments. The detectives were told that Innes and his wife, with the two children, were in Los Angeles while officers were scouring the country for them and it is believed that a mysterious trunk and box, declared to have been shipped by Innes from San Antonio may have been disposed of here.

ON SPRING STREET.

Innes is supposed to have stopped for a day or two at a hotel on South Spring street. Mohan and his men spent the greater part of yesterday trying to locate this place.

Innes, though reticent about the direct charge, was very talkative as to other features of the case. He burst forth time and again in an angry tirade against the Burns agency and declared he would make it warm for them and also the newspapers that have published what he called libelous stories about him and his wife.

Innes would not enter into a discussion of the corpus delicti feature of the case. It was apparent, however, that upon this he expects to make his fight for liberty. So far as is known there has been no proof unearthed that establishes positively that the Nelms sisters are dead. This must be proved by the State of Texas before the murder charge can have any legal standing. Marshal Nelms expressed confidence that it will be established and said the proof will be overwhelming by the time the party arrives at San Antonio.

While Innes was talking with representatives of local newspapers with the two children on his knees, his wife, heavily veiled, sat opposite them at the side of the deputy Sheriff. Innes presented a picture of utter defiance. He would have it understood that he had been terriby wronged and that some one must suffer for it.

The children, bright tots, one a boy, named Harry, and the other a sweet-faced girl, Venetia, seemed to realize the predicament of their father and mother. The girl was especially interested in the interview and all the while kept fingering at the manacles which held the wrists of Innes.

"DAMNED LIE!"

"It is a damned lie! If I were not helpless in these irons there is not a man living who would dare tell me that these children are not mine," declared Innes with emphasis. "There is nothing in the world that my wife and I cherish as we do these tots and no one but an unprincipled, unsympathetic creature would make it necessary for us to make the assertion."

Mrs. Innes, who is said to have been known by the alias Mrs. Mims in Texas, refused to take any part in the interview. She answered no questions and made no inquiries. She is a frail woman with dark hair and eyes, her face as seen through a black veil showing signs of the long strain under which she has been since her arrest. Pale and haggared she was the picture of distress, but appeared to have unlimited confidence in her husband and made no effort to prevent his taking.

"You can see what these cusses are doing to us," said Innes, as he pointed to his wife. "She is suffering from an

SHOES FOR THE FRENCH ARMY.

Deal for Purchase of Half a Million Pairs on Point of Closing Here.

A deal for the purchase of 500,000 pairs of shoes for the French army, involving more than $1,000,000 will probably be closed in Los Angeles within the next few days. A secret agent of the French government has been in conference at the Angelus Hotel with the western representative of a well-known shoe manufacturer of Boston, and the transaction was declared yesterday to have reached the point of arranging for immediate shipment.

The shipping point, the name of the vessel which will convey the cargo and all other details of the transportation will be kept secret so as to guard against the possibility of the consignment being intercepted by the Germans or their sympathizers. The war dispatches report that the French soldiers are poorly shod, indicating that the shoes are badly needed.

QUARTETTE NOW FOUR PIECES.

CUPID SHELLS BACHELOR CIRCLE TO A SURRENDER.

Marriage of Hotel Manager Is Followed by Announcement of Engagement of Another and Like Reports of Two Others—All Members of Same Clubs and Intimates.

An exclusive little bachelor quartette, comprising a membership of well-known men about town and in the clubs, has been broken by what friends declare to be four almost simultaneous romances. The leaking out of the fact that Robert C. Richert, head of Richert Bros. Company, tea, coffee and spice importers, is to marry Miss Helen E. Tipton of Buffalo, follows closely the marriage of Carl Knappe, the successful manager of the Van Nuys Hotel, and the circulation of "suspicious" reports regarding the two others.

Mr. Knappe started out three months ago for a quiet visit to New York, "just for a rest and a little business," he explained on leaving. Several days after his arrival in the metropolis, word was received here that he had been quietly married to a wealthy eastern woman and was leaving for an European trip. He was expected back in Los Angeles this week, having been driven out of Europe by the war, but instead of coming directly, has delayed his return by a further eastern tour.

Mr. Richert, who resides with his mother at No. 1507 Ingraham street, the family home for eighteen years, is to marry a boyhood sweetheart. He knew Miss Tipton in Buffalo when he was a boy and she a little girl. Three years ago, while on an eastern trip, he met her again. With her mother she later visited Los Angeles and it was learned a few days ago that the marriage is impending and will probably take place this week.

The other two members of the bachelors' quartette are J. W. Wilkinson, a real estate operator, and Edward Regan, attorney and prominent Elk. Wilkinson left for New York and then for a hurried trip to Florida several weeks ago. His friends suspect there is more than ordinary business to his going. What they say of Wilkinson, they double on Regan, who was called to Boston by what he termed unavoidable circumstances. Boston was his former home.

All four of the men are members of the Los Angeles Country Club, where they are high up on the list of amateur golfers. They all belong to the Los Angeles Athletic Club and to the Lodge 99, B.P.O.E. During the past five years they have been practically inseparable companions and the act of one of them is taken by their friends as a preliminary of what has been expected of the group.

TRIES TO AVENGE GIRL NEAR DEATH.

INFURIATED FATHER, KNIFE IN HAND, ATTACKS MAN WITH OFFICERS.

Lying in wait for the man who he said had committed a revolting offense against his 6-year-old daughter, Fernando Hernandez, No. 609 Howard street, yesterday attempted summary vengeance upon Y. Verdugo, his former friend.

Verdugo, in custody of Detective Leon and Policewoman Hamm, was taken to the County Hospital to confront little Isabel Hernandez, who is lying near death.

Entering the main entrance, the three were startled by a figure which leaped from behind a pillar. Detective Leon instantly recognized the man as the father of the girl and when Hernandez brandished a gleaming stiletto, the officer divined his purpose and rushed between him and Verdugo, who shrank back in fear. Speaking in Spanish, Detective Leon upbraided the father for his attempt to take the law into his own hands and Hernandez, sheathing his knife, broke into sobs. He said he had just visited his daughter so near death's pale, and thought the officers would not harm him, or even blame him, had he dealt death to Verdugo.

The knife was taken from Hernandez and he was admonished to allow the law to deal with Verdugo.

JACOB'S LADDER BUILT OF BRICKS.

Bishop Robert McIntyre Dies in Chicago Hospital.

Noted Churchman Long Los Angeles Minister.

Rose from Humble Mason to Fame and Honor.

Bishop Robert McIntyre,
Of the district comprising Oklahoma, Texas and part of Kansas, who died yesterday in Chicago. He was a former pastor of the First Methodist Church in this city.

Probably no announcement could be made that would occasion a greater feeling of sorrow in Los Angeles than that of the death of Bishop Robert McIntyre, formerly pastor of the First Methodist Church, this city, which occurred in Chicago yesterday. His district at the time of his death consisted of Oklahoma, Texas and part of Kansas, his home being at Oklahoma City. He had gone to Chicago for treatment for a long-standing ailment and was in a hospital there when his death occurred.

Bishop McIntyre was born in Selkirk, Scotland, November 20, 1851. He came to America when but a boy, and his father and mother being dead, made his way alone in the world. He followed various callings from railroading to theatricals, and finally determining that he wanted to be a preacher, learned the trade of bricklaying in order to accumulate money rapidly for his education, and worked at his trade in rebuilding Chicago after the great fire. It was with a feeling of pride that he used to tell how he afterward returned to the city that he helped rebuild as pastor of one of its great churches.

He became noted as a Chautauqua platform lecturer throughout the United States, and as an author, and was recognized as one of the brilliant men of Methodism. "At Early Candle Light," and "A Modern Apollos" are his best known literary works.

BUILT OWN CHURCH.

After being ordained to the ministry in 1878, he built the first church of which he became pastor, somewhere in the Middle West, laying the bricks with his own hands. He leaped into immediate popularity as a preacher and was soon called to large churches, and after serving in Denver, Chicago and other cities, he found himself in failing health. He came to Los Angeles about 1902 with the intention of taking a long vacation from the pulpit and devoting his time to the preparation of his lectures.

His health speedily mended and he was heard with pleasure in pulpit and on platform, until he was finally induced to become the pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, which pastorate he occupied for six years.

When the General Conference met here he was urged by his friends to become a candidate for the bishopric, but he refused to take part in any effort to elect himself. He was, however, placed in the running and made such an excellent showing that it surprised his most ardent admirers. Four years later, when the conference met again in Baltimore, he was elected and the only expression of regret he ever made at the result was the necessity for leaving Southern California.

The last thing he said when he started East to take his post was that he would return here to live after his retirement. He was given a most notable farewell reception in Temple Auditorium, in which practically all the ministers of the city of all denominations, the Mayor and other men in civil life, took part.

And now he is coming back. But the sadness of his home-coming is overpowering; here his lifeless body will be laid to rest, and Mrs. McIntyre and her two daughters, Miss Ruth and Miss Nell, will reside here, to tenderly watch over his resting place. His only son, C. C. McIntyre, resides at Sierra Madre, and was informed last night of his father's death.

The general funeral service will be held in Oklahoma City, but the date for bringing the body to Los Angeles has not yet been fixed.

BURGLARS LOOT HOME.

While the family of W. M. Porter, No. 1027 East Twenty-seventh street, was at the beach last night, burglars entered the premises through a rear window and stole jewelry valued at about $100. Among the articles missing are a gold necklace, a diamond brooch, a gold-headed cane, a souvenir spoon, a locket and a gold ring.

BLAME ROMANCE FOR RASH ACTS.

WOMAN SORRY SHE WED; MAN BECAUSE HE COULDN'T.

Both of Equal Ages and Unknown to Each Other, Taken to Receiving Hospital for Attempted Self-Destruction—His Was Only Bluff Apparently.

A man and a woman, each 34 years old, were taken to the Receiving Hospital yesterday in efforts to save them from self-destruction. The woman was disappointed in the result of her marriage; the man was disappointed in not reaching the marriage estate.

Mrs. Dorothy Collins, No. 323 East Fifth street, says she had a disagreement with her husband. She went to a bureau drawer and grabbed a revolver. She was putting it to her temple when Mr. Collins interfered and wrested it from her. She implored the husband for the gun and on his refusal ran to the bathroom, where she took a safety razor blade and slashed her wrist. The wound was not deep and after being sewed up at the Receiving Hospital, Mrs. Collins was soon able to return home.

Martin Voss, who lives at No. 311 Winston street, was an ardent pleader for the heart of a woman many years his junior. She spurned his attentions and Voss was so put out that he swallowed poison. At least that is what he said when picked up by the police ambulance before No. 611 West Seventh street. But all of Voss's romantic thoughts were dispersed when the surgeons forced him to swallow a stomach pump. The depth of the patient's attachment was divulged when no trace of poison was found.

POLICE DEPARTMENT CHANGES.

The consolidation of the offices of police property clerk and desk sergeant will be effected this morning. Property Clerk Matuskiwiz, with the rating of sergeant, will be in full charge of the new department, with the following as assistants: E. A. Fulton, W. S. England, H. F. McCarron, W. L. Richards and G. E. Elsner. Sergt. Matuskiwiz has arranged a system which he expects will facilitate and make more accurate the work of his division. The merging of the departments will save the city $1200 a year at least, he says.

BODIES BROUGHT HERE.

The bodies of two men who met violent deaths in the paths of railroad trains late Saturday night were brought to the Pierce morgue, this city, yesterday. One was that of Frank Borgastensek, according to papers in the pockets, who was run over and killed by a Southern Pacific train at a point one-half mile east of Watts. The second body is that of an unidentified man who was killed by a Pacific Electric train at the intersection of Florence and Hudson avenues.

Financial Difficulties.

PRESS CLUB SHUTS DOORS; WILL ASSESS FOR DEBTS.

BY ORDER of its board of directors, issued following a meeting held yesterday, the organization known as the Press Club of Los Angeles quietly passed out of existence last night and the rooms it has been occupying at No. 327 South Hill street were closed.

The debts of the organization are said to aggregate about $3500 and are largely accounted for by the overhead expense of maintaining the clubrooms, according to members. Various devices for increasing the membership had proved abortive and an effort lately made to increase the monthly dues of members from $1 to $2 is said to have not been well received.

The directorate, consisting of R. T. Van Ettisch, president; Harry H. Jones, secretary; Wesley Barr, Carl White, D. W. Green, J. L. Barnard, Henry James and W. E. McLernon, directors, will meet early this week to determine upon a plan to liquidate the obligations of the organization. The furniture will be turned back and a pro rata assessment upon the membership is planned in order to raise the necessary funds. This will amount to about $10 per member, it is said. There is said to be a present membership of about 300, a comparatively small proportion of whom are newspaper men.

Following is the formal statement issued by the directorate yesterday:

The Press Club of Los Angeles closed its club quarters at No. 327 South Hill street last night, by order of the board of directors, which took this action voluntarily. The immediate cause of the suspension of the club was the fact that the running expenses of the club were found to be in excess of the income, entertainments given from time to time not having provided the funds sufficient to maintain the club, as planned.

A plan for the pro rata assessment of the members in order to liquidate the debts of the organization will probably be put into effect this week.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND IN THE CITY SCHOOLS.

Enrollment Beginning This Week to Reach The Coveted Mark.

Twenty-five Hundred Teachers, Less a Few Who Can't Get Back from War-Crazed Europe, to Preside. Lack of Money Means Temporary Buildings and Half-Day Sessions—Features for New Year.

LOS ANGELES city schools will open a week from tomorrow for a new ten months of arduous work. From Supt. Francis down to the office boy, the corps at the Board of Education headquarters is busily engaged in completing details for the start of the new year. The coming six days will be perhaps the most strenuous in their history.

Last year there were approximately 87,000 pupils in all departments of the city schools. This year, it is estimated, the enrollment will reach above 100,000, a goal long aimed at and one attained by few cities of like population. Had not the European war interferred with the coming of many immigrants, who have been buying their tickets for Los Angeles on the installment plan for many months, there would have poured through the Panama Canal a tide of newcomers that would of itself have made a notable increase in the school population. Even as it is, the school authorities are put to it to meet the demands for accommodations.

Besides the vast array of modern school buildings that dot every section of the residential districts, there are 250 temporary structures employed to house the school children, and sixteen more of these are being rushed through so as to be in readiness for the school opening. These are located in the western, southwestern, southeastern and southern parts of the city. Each of these temporary structures will accommodate forty-five pupils.

While the Los Angeles school district has for sale several million dollars worth of bonds, the bond market at present will not permit of their movement, and this means that the city will have to wait for much-needed new school buildings.

This also means that half-day sessions must be in vogue again. In fact, the time may be far ahead when the half-day sessions can be abandoned. The natural growth of the city keeps ahead of the opportunities of the Board of Education for erecting buildings, so that the struggle for more room is likely to be constant.

AN ARMY OF TEACHERS.

There are more than 2500 teachers on the lists, of which about 186 are new teachers here.

All the teaching corps, including substitutes, are to meet at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the Manual Arts High School for their final instructions and for the address of Supt. Francis. The registration for high school enrollment by persons from schools outside the city will take place at 9 o'clock a.m. Friday. All students applying for admission to the city high schools from schools outside of the city; from intermediate, grammar or private schools of the city, are to report for registration at that time. On Tuesday, September 8, at 9 o'clock, all students are to report at the several high schools for enrollment and classification.

The geographical divisions for admission of new students into the city high schools are as follows:

Students residing east of Vermont, north of Jefferson, east of Main are to report to Los Angeles High School or Polytechnic High School. Students residing between Temple and Melrose, west of Vermont, have the option of going to Hollywood High School, Polytechnic High School or Los Angeles High School. Pupils residing south of Melrose and west of Vermont are to report to the Los Angeles or Polytechnic High schools.

Junior college work will be given in the Los Angeles High School and advanced technical work will be given in Polytechnic High School. High school graduates and others having proper credentials, who wish to register for junior college or advanced technical courses will report to these high schools for consultation and registration from 9 to 4 daily, beginning today.

EFFECT OF THE WAR.

The European war has had its effect directly on the local school situation. Some of the Los Angeles teachers who have been attending summer schools in European countries, and others who have been traveling there, have succeeded in getting back as far as New York and have so notified friends here; while others are still in the old country, awaiting chances to take passage in steerage or anyway to get back to America. Others, still, have not been heard from at all, although there yet re-

Unloading from the S.S. "Missourian," now in Los Angeles Harbor, we have a considerable shipment of Jevne Specialties, including sardines, wines, and other dainties, which were placed aboard this steamer in New York Harbor in transit from Europe.

This is our first cargo to be received by way of the Panama Canal, and it is significant to note that this initial shipment is but the forerunner of many.

Direct from New York to Los Angeles the S.S. "Missourian" did not open her hatches until she was wharved in local waters. This is the greatest step toward progress and realization that could be made, and it reflects great credit on those who have concerned themselves in making it a matter of actuality.

SAYS NAME IS HER NEMESIS.

Notorious Leah Alexander in Jail Again.

Arrested for Disturbance After Noisy Night.

Was Acquitted in North for Slaying Van Baalen.

"I am the notorious Leah Alexander; if that was not my name I would not be here in jail."

Arrested for disturbing the peace at 3 o'clock yesterday morning after a night of tangoes, taxicabs and cocktails, the young woman who was acquitted by a San Francisco jury for the slaying of J. D. Van Baalen, an advertising man, whom she styles as her betrayer, frankly admitted that her effort to live down the past had failed.

Miss Alexander could not understand why she was in jail—unless it was because the police knew her identity. She was robbed of a diamond-studded bar pin, she said, and one of her ten companions, not she, should be behind the steel grillwork of the City Jail. But the residents of the neighborhood of Eleventh and Blaine streets insisted upon the police taking her in and the police did. They also took into custody Lee J. Preston, 46 years old, who says he is a traveling salesman. Today they will tell their stories to Police Judge Williams.

SCREAMING IN STREET.

At 3 o'clock yesterday morning the detectives were called to Thirteenth and Connecticut streets. They found Miss Alexander in the street, screaming. Between her outcries she said a companion had knocked her down and taken a pin valued at $75. Investigating they learned she had come from a house at No. 1030 Blaine street, which is said to have been the subject of many complaints from neighbors.

"I went there for the first time last night," Miss Alexander said yesterday, "on the invitation of a woman friend. I did not know of the character of the place, although I was not surprised when drinks were served.

"We tangoed during the evening and refreshed ourselves at a long bar, which had been built in the house. At one time a policeman came to the door. The woman of the house told us all to get out of sight. We went into the back yard in the dark. Then we came back and danced some more. One of the men took me out onto the porch and there I noticed that my bar pin was lost. I spoke of it and the man knocked me down with his fist. Then one woman said, 'You are Leah Alexander. We don't want anything to do with you.' I called a taxicab and one of the men crowded in with me. We rode a block or two and then I jumped out. I was hysterical when the police arrived. Who wouldn't be after having been treated the way I was?"

Miss Alexander is 30 years old and of attractive appearance. She returned to Los Angeles, her home, last February when the San Francisco jury had acquited her after a sensational trial which attracted nation-wide attention.

Van Baalen, the man she slew, saw her for the first time when he was motoring with his wife. Stopping his automobile, he crawled under the machine and scrawled a note addressed to her. Slipping it into a cigarette box, he drove so as to repass her and making a deprecatory remark to his wife, threw the box in the path of Miss Alexander. It asked for an appointment but it was not until a year later that they met. Under promise of marriage, Miss Alexander says, she went with Van Baalen to the West Indies. When they returned she learned that he was married. She went to the wife and receiving no sympathy, attempted suicide. Taken to the Central Emergency Hospital in San Francisco she soon recovered. Able to be about again, she purchased a revolver, deposited it in her handbag and cornered Van Baalen in his offices in the Chronicle building. After taxing him with having spurned her for another "affinity," Miss Alexander shot and killed him.

"CAN'T LIVE IT DOWN."

"I shall never be able to live down that record," Miss Alexander said yesterday. "Although the jury vindicated my action by acquitting me I am a marked woman. I came home with the sincere intention of forgetting the past and demonstrating that I am deserving the respect of my friends.

"But I was surprised in these friends. Some stood by me. I love them more than I can tell. Others shunned me as the plague. Perhaps it is best. Now I know who my real friends are. But the persecution, if you call it that, did not end with my social relations. I assumed the name of Warren and secured a position with a moving-picture company. With all the notoriety that attended the trial the public may have thought I would be in demand, but the truth is that when the company with which I was playing learned that I was Leax Alexander, I was discharged. Those people last night learned that I was Leah Alexander and they made my name an excuse for abuse."

CLUB WOMAN DIES.

Wife of Well-Known Realty Man Took Active Part in Social and Club Circles.

Mrs. O. Eugene Farish, wife of Oscar E. Farish, president of the California Realty Company, died last night at her home, No. 2193 West Adams street, after an illness that had lasted over a period of years. She was prominent in club and social circles during her residence in this city for the last seventeen years and made many friends. Mrs. Farish was a member of several organizations, among them the Ladies of the G.A.R., and the Women's Suffrage Club. She was 40 years of age and a native of New York.

Besides her widower, Mrs. Farish leaves two daughter, Muriel and Gwendolyn. The arrangements for the funeral have not been announced.

ADMIRAL DEWEY COMES; GOES.

First Passenger Boat Through Canal, but She Brings No Passengers.

The Admiral Dewey, one of the Admiral line boats of the Pacific Alaska Navigation Company, docked at the Los Angeles Harbor yesterday morning on the way from New York, via the Panama Canal, to San Francisco. The boat brought about 500 tons of freight but no passengers, although she is the first passenger boat through the canal. She will be put on a regular twice-a-week schedule from San Francisco to Puget Sound. The Admiral Schley, a sister ship, will arrive at this port Wednesday and will ply regularly between San Francisco and Seattle.

After discharging her local consignment of miscellaneous merchandise, chiefly from New York, at the Pacific Wharf and Storage Company's docks, the Admiral Dewey cleared last night for San Francisco.

SUDDEN LIGHT ON OCCULTISM.

DRAMATIC EXPOSE OF "SEANCE" BY SPIRITUALISTS.

Say They Caught a "Medium" Posing as a Ghost and She's Abruptly Turned Out With Promise of Arrest and Prosecution if She Continues in Profession.

There is some dispute as to exactly what Mrs. Stella White, a San Diego medium, was wearing, but her costume, when the lights were turned on, would not pass a critical censor, according to those who saw it. She was "materializing" under the direction of an Indian guide, Roger Raise-the-Tent, at a spiritualistic seance at the residence of Mrs. John Disler, No. 400 East Sixty-third street, Saturday night. Those present tell of a sensational expose, followed by a summary dismissal of the "medium" from the premises, together with a promise of arrest and prosecution if she continues as a medium.

Mrs. White came here with her husband, Harold, who was formerly an attorney in San Diego, but has recently, it is reported, sacrificed his law practice to assist his wife. That she might be reassured of the authenticity of the materializations, Mrs. Disler summoned a number of followers of the occult to be present. Among those most experienced was James Racy, No. 916 South Hill street.

Mrs. White's husband was to attend to the lights during the seance. Mrs. White took her position in the cabinet. A hush crept over the room. Faintly from a distant light came a subdued glow. It was so dim that shadows were enormous, the minor light of a dungeon or a candle-shown cave.

Various questions were asked of Mrs. White. One of the party asked for an interview with her grandmother. There was a long pause. The lights were quenched. From the depths of the cabinet wherein Mrs. White had disappeared to produce her spirts, there appeared a vision, a spirit in white, a being that moved in a rolling step. It was an odd step, somewhat similar to that Mrs. White displayed in her movements.

The spirit began to converse under the directions of Roger Raise-The-Tent, the "famous Indian guide" for Mrs. White. It seemed to the descendant not quite the accent of the ancestral woman. When the vision spoke the word "half" she delivered it with a broad enunciation of the letter A, and surely grandmother never used the ultra-English pronunciation.

So she told Mr. Racy that she had some doubts about this person Roger Raise-The-Tent and his medium. Mr. Racy said he would investigate. As he was about to arise to prove the material or immaterial form of the speaker, there came to his foot a pressure. It was sudden, it was soft. A padded foot of a wild animal might have given such a pressure, or, to the horror of good spiritualists, it might have been a human foot, unshod, without buskins or rivetted leather.

Mr. Racy rose to his feet suddenly as the figure passed him. He grasped the figure from the rear, pinioned the arms, that were supposed to be spiritual, from the back, and held the form, that was supposed to be only air, firmly and safely.

"Lights!" he shouted.

It was not Mr. White who turned them on, but they were turned on. To the horror of the assembled thirty persons, they revealed a woman. They are one in asserting that it was Mrs. White. Her feet were bare and over her clung a diaphanous robe of sheer material. There seemed to be but little else. One woman shrieked, another cried aloud "Fake! Fake!" Before a closer examination could be made the lights were re-extinguished and Mrs. White retired to her cabinet. Swiftly she resumed her garb of the street. When the lights returned, she was nearly clothed.

She met the accusing glare of the congregation coolly. Mrs. Disler, her hostess, went to her. "Mrs. White," so she quotes herself, "we will give you three minutes in which to leave this house, and if we ever learn of your acting as a spiritualistic medium again, we shall prosecute you. And if you care to remain here, we shall call the police, and ask them to relieve us of your presence."

Mrs. White and her husband left the house.

CLAREMONT, Aug. 30.—Prof. A. M. Brace, who for about three years was a member of the faculty of Pomona College, where he had charge of the department of oratory and was associated with the department of literature, is one of the six Americans who have decided to remain in Tsing-Tau and brave the terrors of the siege by the Japs. Two years ago Brace went to the Philippines in the employ of the government; later he took a position on the Manila Times, then went to Shanghai where he became connected with the Associated Press, and on receipt of Japan's ultimatum, he was sent to the German fortifications as special correspondent for the Associated Press and Reuter's agency.

attack of pneumonia and scarcely able to sit up, to say nothing of this long journey."

Innes then cursed Marshall Nelms for the predicament of his wife and himself. He declared that it was upon the affidavit of Nelms that they were arrested and that Nelms was putting up all the money for the prosecution.

"Nelms is paying for our transportation and keep on the train," said Innes. "Since we left San Francisco we have had two loaves of bread and a few sandwiches. That is his diet for little children and a woman who is ill."

Nelms denied the charge of inadequate food, stating further that on the trip from Portland to San Francisco he had entertained the party in the dining car.

Innes is of heavy build, dark complexion and flashing black eyes. He is an attorney and his reputation of being a cool, calculating, shrewd man is borne out in his appearance and general demeanor.

CURSES PHOTOGRAPHERS.

Only once did he show any signs of excitement. That was when photographers were using flashlights in the car. Pulling a broad-brimmed hat down over his face and telling his wife to bury her head he swore savagely and refused to talk further to reporters or officers.

The crime for which Innes and his wife are under arrest is alleged to have been committed in San Antonio, that being the last place that the Nelms sisters were seen alive. They are or were daughters of a very wealthy Georgia family and left Atlanta for San Antonio to have Innes look after the transfer of oil property in Texas and Mexico, valued at about $15,000. Mrs. Dennis is said to have had $1600 in her purse when she started on the trip. Mrs. Dennis previously had dealings with Innes, who secured a divorce for her at Reno.

Marshal Nelms is authority for the statement that his sisters were last seen at the railroad station in San Antonio, where they were met by Innes. Nelms says he will be able to prove that Innes rented a house in San Antonio in the summer and insisted that there be a furnace in it. He also states that Innes bought a large amount of lye and potash and that blood stains and chemicals were found in many portions of the Innes home.

"PHANTOM" MOTOR FOUND.

Also Five Other Persons Who Were Injured When Two Machines Collided Saturday Night.

The "phantom automobile" in the motor car collision near Culver City late Saturday night was found by Sheriff's deputies yesterday to have been driven by Fred Comer, No. 1827 South Union avenue. Following the smash-up the three injured occupants of one machine were taken to the Receiving Hospital but no trace of the persons in the second machine could be found. Interest in the case was heightened by the report that one of the motorists had been killed.

Mr. Comer said his guests were R. Dutton of No. 1827 West Pico street, F. B. McFee and wife of No. 266½ North Fremont avenue, and S. Bressee, who lives at the St. George Hotel. All received minor bruises but were not taken to any public institution for treatment.

Frank Eppish, an auto repair man, living at No. 1243 East Fifty-seventh street, who was the most seriously injured, was reported as resting easily at the County Hospital yesterday. He suffered a broken leg and an injury to his head. He will probably recover. Ernest D. Fee of No. 115 East Sixtieth street, and Mrs. Pearl Erskine, No. 4463 South Park avenue, owner of the first car, were yesterday removed to their homes from the Receiving Hospital.

mains but a few days until the time for their labors here to begin. It is very evident that some of the teaching corps of the city schools will have some startling experiences to tell their pupils when they once more get down to class work.

Among those who have not been heard from as to their present whereabouts or their prospects of return are Miss Flagg, superintendent of home economics, who has been making a general European tour; C. A. Kunou, superintendent of manual training, and T. A. Angledorf of the Polytechnic High School, who were last heard from in Sweden.

Ten or fifteen of the city teachers who have been abroad have secured steerage passage in vessels to New York—and were mightily pleased to get even this accommodation. They will be back in time for the school opening.

Several new features will be included in the school work this year, and much emphasis will be laid on school gardening in the lower grades, in conformity with the general plan of beautifying Los Angeles for 1915.

The past school year showed a list of about 1200 graduates from the various high schools. The number will be materially increased this year. A considerable percentage of these graduates are taking up college work.

THEATRICAL MAN HELD.

Henry M. D. Serrano, 40 years old, owner of a moving picture theater at Temple and Main streets, was arrested yesterday by Policewoman Hamm and booked on suspicion of having contributed to the delinquency of three 16-year-old girl employees. According to the story of the girls, he withheld their wages because they would not submit to his overtures. Mrs. Serrano appeared at Central Station yesterday and offered to assist in the prosecution of her husband.

V. RUSSELL F. THRAPP.

ST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

IS NOT ONLY A FACT OF HIS- TORY BUT OF THE LIVING PRESENT.

the First Christian Church yes- y morning, Rev. Russell F. preached on the subject, "The of Jesus," or "Was Jesus passed?" He said:

rst of all, let us for a few min- think of the fact of Jesus. Jesus historical personage. Attempts ain Christianity's founder as a ial being have utterly failed. name was Jesus, the time of His the latter half of the eighth of the Roman period and ginning of the Christian era: , the Hebrew people; His , Palestine, and the place He died, Jerusalem. The Governor at the time was Pilate and Tiberius was Emperor. These facts are as well attested as any other of that same period. Christianity's founder lived. How shall we account for Him? Was He dreamed into existence? Then the dreamer must be equal to the one he dreamed. Did Matthew, Mark, Luke and John invent their biographies? Are they fictional? To take the position that they are is to raise those four Jewish writers to as great heights as Jesus occupies and necessitates the accounting for them.

"Not only is Jesus a fact of history. He is also a fact of present or personal experience. He still lives. Nor does He live in the same sense that Luther, St. Francis of Assisi, John Milton or other great men live simply by influence or imperishable work. One may not be able to explain just how He yet lives in a sense different from all others nor need one be troubled thereby.

"Let us think also for a little on the unique greatness of Jesus. What is greatness? The term is difficult to define.

"Greatness is a relative term. But usually the greatness of men is measured by their deeds. This is to say that a man who writes a popular book, paints a famous picture, carves a beautiful statue, builds a bridge, or railroad, heads a gigantic industry, delivers an eloquent oration, occupies high office—such a one is termed great according to the excellence of his work. Some men are reckoned as great who were very small of soul and mean-lived. Some writers and artists of fame were known to be corrupt and vicious in habits of life.

"Alexander was a great military chieftain, but he was a weak man morally if we may believe history. Bonaparte as a great captain is immortal, but as a man he was far from attractive. Recall the names of those whom the world calls great. They vary in genius, in temperament, and in kind of greatness, but not one of them was great in the sense that Jesus of Nazareth was great.

"Jesus never painted a picture, wrote a book, carved a statue, led an army or held an office either in church or state, and yet His name is indisputable greater than any other in the world's long line of great names. Jesus's greatness rests more on what He was than on what He did, though His deeds are unforgetable. But, it is quality of character and purity of life that imparts to His greatness uniqueness and solitariness. Every one who has seriously studied the character of Jesus or thought much at all on Christianity's founder cannot but appreciate that saying of Charles Lamb that, 'If Shakespeare were to come into this room, we should all rise to meet him, but if Jesus were to come into it, we should fall down and try to kiss the hem of His garment.'

"Will Jesus ever be surpassed? Nineteen hundred years have passed and His equal has not risen. This is not true of the world's other great ones. Every generation produces genuises worthy to be compared with those who have gone before. Alexander the Great was rivaled by Hannibal, Hannibal by Caesar, and Caesar by Napoleon, and there are students of history who would rank Von Molke higher than Napoleon and thus it will continue.

"In art, in literature, in science, the same is true, of no one man can it be said, 'He stands alone! He has no rival! No equal! No superior!' But, this is true of Jesus. Nineteen hundred years instead of diminishing His greatness has accentuated it. Today more than ever before the limelight is on the Nazarene. Books! poems! pictures! with Jesus as theme continue to come in increasing numbers to swell the world tribute to the Master of men. If Jesus was only a man, why has there not been other men like Him? If after nineteen hundred years Jesus has not been equaled and surely He has not, the answer to the question, 'Will Jesus ever be surpassed?' is not difficult. There is only one answer.

"Ernest Renan, the gifted French rationalistic writer, in his famed 'Life of Jesus' closes the volume with these significant words: 'But whatever may be the unexpected phenomena of the future, Jesus will not be surpassed. His worship will constantly renew its youth, the tale of His life will cause ceaseless tears, His sufferings will soften the best hearts; all the ages will proclaim that, among the sons of men, there is none born who is greater than Jesus.'

"Jesus is supreme in the realm of morals. His very name is synonymous with saintliness. Jesus is supreme in the realm of sacrifice. Others have toiled and suffered, but none so perfectly or exquisitely as did He.

"Jesus is supreme in the realm of leadership. For nineteen hundred years the world's leaders have followed the Knight of Nazareth. Nor is it too much to say that Jesus is supreme in the realm of intellect, since we think our best thoughts after Him."

REV. W. E. TILROE.

BOYLE HEIGHTS M. E. CHURCH.

WHAT THE WORLD GAINED IN COMFORT WHEN CHRIST LOST A DINNER.

Rev. W. E. Tilroe, pastor of Boyle Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, preached an interesting sermon yesterday morning on the subject: "One Sinner Less," taking his text from John 4:31-32. The following is an extract:

"The troubles men get into are not all on account of their sins. Very much is a matter of their size. That Nicodemus was so puzzled about the new birth was not that he was wicked. He simply had not grown enough. When the disciples would call down fire they meant well. Later and larger they meant and said something else and something better. When the apostles rejoiced that even the devils were subject to them, it was because they were little. That their names were written in Heaven was of much more consequence.

"The sons of Zebedee did not go gunning for the two highest places in the kingdom so much for want of religion as for want of sense. They had not grown enough. Just here is the first great lesson of the hour. It was well enough these kindly disciples should concern themselves about the noonday dinner. The larger and wiser Master counted its loss a small affair.

"The trouble of the earth is not all sin, but often size. Men are little when they should be large. It is hurtful for an invalid to over-estimate his ailments. It is hurtful to esteem the world worse than it is. With all its badness, the earth is the Lord's and the followers thereof. Men should not be cruel to their kind. In every rough and rugged stone there is an angel, if we know how to carve it out. We should consider ourselves and be patient while men grow.

"This one dinner teaches us again that the path of duty is the order of providence. Usually in a hot country the noonday meal and the hour of rest is quite entirely the leading of the Lord. But a Samaritan woman comes to the well and the will of God is an evangelistic service and a whole neighborhod transformed.

"Time is an element in God's work. It is never four months to harvest. The fields are white already. However good our plan when the great God breaks it up it is for something better, always something better. When one goes riding with God the switch and siding are often the main track. To be happy even there is always wisdom. The path of duty is the order of providence.

"This path of duty is the way of blessing. There people lost their dinner, but see what the world has gained. Just such lessons as these have meant, for instance, the elevation of womankind. The disciples marveled that Jesus was talking with a woman. In the Ten Commandments a woman is not to be coveted because, like a house and an ox, she belongs to a man. One dinner less to lift our sisters, wives and daughters and mothers to a throne is surely worth the losing.

"What this insistence on evangelism has meant for men! The woman is converted, those who listen to her word are converted; those who come and hear for themselves are converted; thousands have read the story in later ages and are converted.

"A wonderful harvest for just one dinner less. How the low and degraded find hope and cheer just here. A woman of the town becomes in an hour a minister of the great God. The stained and black is washed white and the child of despair has a song in her mouth. The world in its very depths may catch a vision of the stars. One dinner less is the price. The path of duty is the way of blessing."

UNION AVENUE M. E. CHURCH.

WAR OPPOSES SPIRIT OF GOD AND IS UNJUSTIFIED BY RELIGION.

The pastor of Union Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. John M. Barnhart, spoke on the subject, "Is God Good?" answering this question in the light of the European catastrophe.

"The long, tedious evolution of the moral nature of man, and the slowly percolating knowledge of the will of God, pushes far into the future the day of brotherhood, universal peace and good-will among men," the speaker began.

"This spiritual and intellectual inertia grips men in paralyzing fear, and prostrates them before national gods, and an insatiable thirst for the blood of men of other nations.

"Many hundred years ago Jesus came to reveal the nature of God, and according to his own words to do God's will. This same teacher and redeemer said, 'All that take the sword shall perish with the sword.' Again He said, 'The Son of Man came not to destroy men's lives, but to save them.' Again He said, 'For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life.'

"If Jesus revealed the true nature of God, then the sight of what one recent writer described as 'crowned criminals' praying to their respective deities for success in wholesale murder is a pitiable anachronism.

"I am glad, for one, to worship the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, a God of love, and not a respecter of persons. It ought to be clear that it is the will of God to save men—the Germans, the Austrians, the French, the English and all the others. When at the behest of military authorities, and money loaners and speculators the nations are inflamed with murderous hate and wreak vengeance upon each other until checked through famine, pestilence, or physical exhaustion, the purpose of God is being frustrated.

"The acts of men which paralyze industries, desolate the lands, destroy the health and lives of its citizens, make conditions of living harder, engender hatred, and prepare great burdens for the backs of unborn generations, is nothing short of crime and therefore cannot have the sanction of God.

"God has ordained love, not hate; brotherly sympathy and intelligent co-operation, not strife; peace, not war.

"To charge God with the tragedy of the battlefield or the horrors of militarism either in the time of peace or war is ignorance or blasphemy.

"The moral government of God is accomplished not by compulsion or coercion, but by tuition. God's relation to a world of free moral agent is similar to the relation of the captain of a sailing vessel to the forces that modify his sailing course. After many days of sailing he reaches the port for which he started, though unexpected currents, winds and storms forced him far from the intended course.

"The whole creation moves toward some far off divine event, but it seems to us it must be behind schedule time. If so we are to blame.

"When men, who are rational beings, resort to force to settle disputes and differences of opinion, or even the infraction of international law, they abdicate the throne of reason and defy the great universal law of love.

"Let not the present cataclysm dishearten the believers in a loving God who reveals Himself in the lives and institutions of men.

"Revelation continues, knowledge increases, and already millions of every nation see the absurdity, the brutality, the material and moral waste of war. As suddenly as this conflict was precipitated, in some good future day, the spirit of democracy and fraternity will spring spontaneously and simultaneously in all the civilized nations of the world.

"Autocracy, plutocracy, kings, princes, and potentates will be destroyed by the power of public opinion; the republic of God will be established and the kingdoms of this world will become the kingdoms of God."

Spoiled Her Sport.

[Tit Bits:] It was a sweet, sad play, and there was hardly a dry handkerchief in the house. But one man in the first balcony irritated his neighbors excessively by refusing to take the performance in the proper spirit. Instead of weeping, he laughed. While others were mopping their eyes and endeavoring to stifle their sobs, his face beamed with merriment and he burst into inappropriate guffaws.

At last a lady by his side turned upon him indignantly.

"I d-don't know what brought y-you here," she sobbed, with streaming eyes, and pressing her hand against her aching heart, "but if y-you don't like the p-play you might l-let other p-people enjoy it!"

PUBLICITY

Sure Cure for Corporate Diseases.

As Necessary as Light and Air in Hospitals.

The startling disclosures of corporate mismanagement in the last ten years have brought about a general feeling that publicity of corporation affairs is both necessary and desirable for the future well-being of all corporations. This publicity may be affected in many ways and should give the public as well as the stockholders such information as will eliminate all possible chance for corruption and mismanagement.

In the past, managers of some corporations have operated their business in a more or less arrogant fashion, persistently refusing to make their acts known to the public or even to their stockholders. In most instances if these operations had been made public at the time, many of the ills from which they are now suffering would not have occurred, and millions of dollars of investment would have been saved.

The effect of corporate mismanagement is greatly magnified, however, when its discovery comes too late by governmental investigation. Generally speaking, if the facts were voluntarily made public, or if they were made known through established methods of publicity, in the regular course of business, the mismanagement of the corporation would never occur or it could be remedied immediately and the bad effect of it would be comparatively small.

And so it is with many houses of business—in the field of commerce and manufacture. They are afraid of publicity—afraid to have their factories examined and to let purchaser verify statements or facts concerning the goods. The only conclusion to be reached in such case is that the manufacturer has something to conceal, which, if discovered, would not bear out his assertions.

Publicity in relation to all business matters is the best cure for their evils, just as light and air kill the germs of disease.

—do not hesitate to say who makes it. In fact, one of their strongest arguments is to tell their customers that we are the manufacturers of Certain-teed Roofing. Certain-teed Roofing is guaranteed 5 years for 1-ply, 10 years for 2-ply, and 15 years for 3-ply, and we stand behind this guarantee with the biggest roofing and building paper mills in the world.

BOOKS AND LIFE.

They do not always agree. For instance, a philosopher entitled a profound work, "A Variety of Religious Experiences." In life, of course, the variety of non-religious experiences is preponderant.

CHEATING THE PUBLIC.

If a man holds an office for which he is unfit he is as dishonest as any other sort of thief. If he refuses to eliminate himself there is no reason why the public should repeat its own mistake by re-electing him.

A GUESS.

We know a man who dreams much. This man says to us that the German hosts will eat supper in front of Paris Thursday night, and dictate terms to London by September 15. We shall see what his prophecy is worth.

CAN'T HELP HIMSELF.

Some one asked Capt. Fredericks if the report was true that he is running for office. "No," he replied, "I was running for the nomination, but the people are now running me." We are glad to know that the public will have this job.

CHINA AND EGGS.

The Chinese will sell no more eggs to the United States. They prefer to sell them to Germany, providing they can deliver them. If the Teutons can secure the 500-year variety we advise them to use them on the enemy instead of bombs.

RUSSIA IN DOUBT.

Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that a good part of the world is in doubt about Russia. Can they really have amassed 8,000,000 soldiers in so short a time, and have they railroad facilities for handling them, or a commissariat capable of their maintenance? If so, why England's desperate appeal for volunteers?

WAR CLOTHES.

Indians put on war paint, but civilized women are less savage and more artistic. They put on war clothes. At the close of the last war they dressed in all kinds of Balkan stuff and styles. We suppose the present conflict will bring us Normandy and Belgian peasant costumes and all sorts of regimental uniforms in feminine adaptation.

THE SINEWS OF WAR.

Europe has come to know what this term means. The apparent lull in German activities is perhaps due to the time needed for the transportation of ammunition. Has it occurred to you that Russia is, perhaps, the only country with enough wheat to withstand a siege of war, or it is possible that Germany has been hoarding grain against just such an emergency?

AGREEABLY ALOOF.

If Germany loses its factories will resume, but it will have not ships to deliver the goods. England will see to that for some time to come. No politics or statecraft can permanently repress the trade of a nation with something to sell. Under any circumstances the United States must supply the South American trade for many years, and by that time our people will be able to hold all they give us.

PAYING FOR PLAY.

Afternoon confections, tea, ices and all that sort of thing are not necessary as food or refreshment. People go to places where these things are sold more for the rest, the conversation and the play. What they really desire is a few minutes of talk together in a cosy downtown corner. They would just as soon spend the same amount of money for a bouquet, a family album to look at or a little music that was not too loud.

BLINN AND BLAZES.

Perhaps the youth and buoyancy of Harry Mestayer will conciliate the reputed horrors of Holbrook Blinn when he brings the Princess Theater Company of New York to the Mason Operahouse in Los Angeles. It will also be interesting to see whether Blinn is really as yellow or as black as most critics have reported him to be. He produces one-act plays only and lately he has run to the extreme in sensation. May he temper the winds to western lambs!

HOW THEY DESCENDED THE STAIRS.

When Mulligan, who had too great a load on, started to come downstairs, he tripped, fell head over heels, and landed all in a heap at the bottom. The crowd laughed and Mulligan rebuked them. "Wot's the matther wid yez?" said he. "Sure, I always come downstairs that way."

So it is with the Progressives. In New York, in Pennsylvania, in Illinois, in Ohio, in Missouri, in Wisconsin, in Indiana, in Iowa, and now in California they have "come downstairs that way."

BASEBALL AND GRAMMAR.

From the bottom of the ladder the Boston Braves have climbed to second place, crowding the New York Giants. It is only natural that this astonishing and enviable success should have attracted the attention and have won the admiration of the American boy. None the less, it must have been something of a surprise to a local teacher a few days ago when she asked a young hopeful for the comparison of the word "brave" to have him answer: Positive, Mann; comparative, Moran; superlative, Maranville." This may not be grammar, but it certainly stands as a compliment to a good outfielder, catcher and infielder.

OVERSEAS—THE SITUATION TO DATE.

The latest accounts of the situation in Europe agree that tremendous battles are now going on in three great fields of action: Eastern Prussia, on the borders of Austria-Hungary, and below the Belgium frontier in France. The Germany army, advancing south with irresistible force, appears to be pushing back the allies in spite of their stubborn resistance. Paris, preparing for a siege, is expecting to put up a mighty struggle, and in anticipation of the needs which will be forced on its inhabitants if the siege is protracted, is turning its parks into sheep pastures and storing great quantities of food in the warehouses.

Russia is said to have taken Allenstein in Germany, where the armies of the Kaiser have pressed them severely, but even Berlin admits that the tenacity of the Russians is something tremendous. A great battle with the Austrians is going on along the borders of Austria-Hungary with an army of Russians said to number 800,000 men. Lord Kitchener, in an official statement, gives a more detailed account of the operations of the British forces, stating that they fought with great vigor with the Germans wherever they came in contact, and admits that their losses may run up to 8000 men. These, he declares, have all been replaced.

It is declared that the envoys of the foreign nations in Washington are making strenuous efforts to keep the friendship of the United States.

GOOD INDICATIONS.

The Times is glad to note that men of affairs are beginning to take their minds off the more startling aspects of the war, and are thinking about the advantages that have not only been offered to this country, but have actually been forced upon it by the shock of conflict among the nations of the Old World.

The time has now come when the business men of the United States are practically cut off from the competition and the co-operation of the industrial factors on the other side of the Atlantic. The very difficulties that are presented are, in truth, but advantages slightly disguised. Those products which we can no longer get from Europe, and which we cannot do without, must be manufactured by our factories, by our chemists and by our mills. Necessity demands it; and to answer the demands of necessity is easy at this time.

The indications are that in every part of the country men are scheming, planning, studying and working to take hold of the tremendous opportunities for new and renewed industry. Not only is shipping to be revived, not only are those products in which we have always excelled to be more than ever demanded, but even new industries, which we never expected to have, are being called into existence.

Earl Kitchener, the one man who knows more of the European situation than any who has yet spoken, and perhaps as much as any who may speak, has let it be known that in his opinion this war will last for at least three years. It is probable that it will last longer. It is certain, even if it should end in twelve months, years will elapse before the industrial balance of Europe can be regained and before European industries will be restored to the degree of efficiency existing prior to this military cataclysm which brought them down in ruins.

That means that the new industries of the United States will have a long period in which to develop without competition, and in which to gain strength for whatever competition may afterward develop. With such an advantage they have little to fear from rivals—even after peace is restored to Europe.

Reports from the East show that our fabric mills are being reopened and running at full speed—"full speed ahead," to borrow a significant nautical term. This is because we are no longer able to procure the merhandise that we formerly depended upon Europe to supply. The wholesalers, the retailers and the customers are clamoring for dress goods. War may wreck a dozen nations, but the men and women of the United States must be clothed, and also the men and women of all other countries.

New York has already become the fashion center of this hemisphere. Paris is eliminated from competition, and London also. It is probable that New York may ever afterward be the greatest fashion center of the world, for the designers of that city are now compelled to use their own initiative, instead of following the patterns of Parisians.

We pay $150,000,000 annually to the foreign owners of ships for carrying our goods. The tribute of one year alone would build an American fleet of 100 ships. It would supply thousands of men with employment in our shipyards, it would stimulate the lumber trade, give more work to the steel mills and iron foundries. The money that American business has paid for transporting goods would have been kept in circulation in America, instead of being carried to Europe and placed to the advantage of our industrial competitors. This was the situation before the war.

The situation now demands American ships. Our exports cannot be handled without them. Companies have been organized in New York to buy or build ships that will belong to America. Necessity is forcing us into this opportunity. It is a case of something that must be done; and the men with the most courage, the most foresight, will be the ones to receive the greatest benefits.

Another illustration is the manufacture of toys. Germany, France and Switzerland have always supplied this country with most of the toys, but will probably never do so again. It is reported that a comparatively small toy factory in New York has raised money to increase its capacity fivefold in the knowledge that foreign competition is eliminated and that the first American factory into the field will have the biggest advantage. But no one factory can supply the toys for the United States. The demand is too great, and with the holiday season but a few months away, with the manufacturers of Europe completely helpless, it means that the children of this nation must depend on home industry or be without toys on Christmas morn. There is no reason why Los Angeles should not have a toy factory that can dominate the entire Pacific Coast—if Los Angeles is first in the field.

Germany for years has practically led the world in the manufacture of denatured alcohol. This alcohol is rapidly becoming considered a desirable motor car fuel because of the comparative ease with which it may be manufactured and sold. The supply of gasoline is diminishing. As Prof. Magruder of the Ohio State University stated some time ago: "If all of the gasoline engines of the country now in use were to run at their rated horse power for ten hours a day the known gasoline supply in this country would last about thirty days." This puts to rest the popular impression that the high price and low grade of present-day gasoline is due mainly to trade combination and artificial restrictions of the output.

For several months before the war broke out Germany, looking into the future, saw the enormous demand that was soon to come for denatured alcohol, and agricultural distilleries were being established all over the kingdom. The Germans use cheap potatoes, while in this country we are still using high-priced grain. In a special report of our Consul-General at Berlin he reported that the Germans had produced in one year over 78,000,000 gallons of denatured alcohol from potatoes.

The competition of Germany in this industry is now eliminated. Americans may profit by all of the experiments and developments of that country, use them, and get the industry under way before the rival is again able to be formidable.

Hitherto we have been dependent upon Europe for many of our essential drugs. Those drugs, or most of them, can be made in the United States, but the European chemists developed the trade and overrode competition. It seemed impossible that domestic manufacturers could ever make headway against this competition. That is now eliminated. The drug supply is cut off. Prices on imported drugs and chemicals have already soared tremendously. L. D. Sale, president of the Western Wholesale Drug Company of this city, says that American manufacturers of certain drugs will now accomplish more in one year than they would have otherwise done in twenty years. Again, necessity—the stern mother of invention and enterprise—demands it, and the druggists of America have already begun to respond.

We have leaned heavily on Europe for help in supplying glassware, perfumes, wines, soda, tobacco, hops, flax, linen, silks, paper, phosphorous, musical instruments, surgical instruments, refined sulphur—and though enormous quanities of cotton are produced in the United States, and a very high grade of it in Imperial Valley, it comes back to us from Europe as thread, handkerchiefs, clothing.

It is preposterous that we should send raw material to the mills of Europe and buy the finished product again, losing the profit of manufacture, losing the opportunities for the employment of labor, and losing the chance to keep the money circulating in the United States. The war gives us the opportunity to alter these conditions without competition from the established and aggressive mills of Europe.

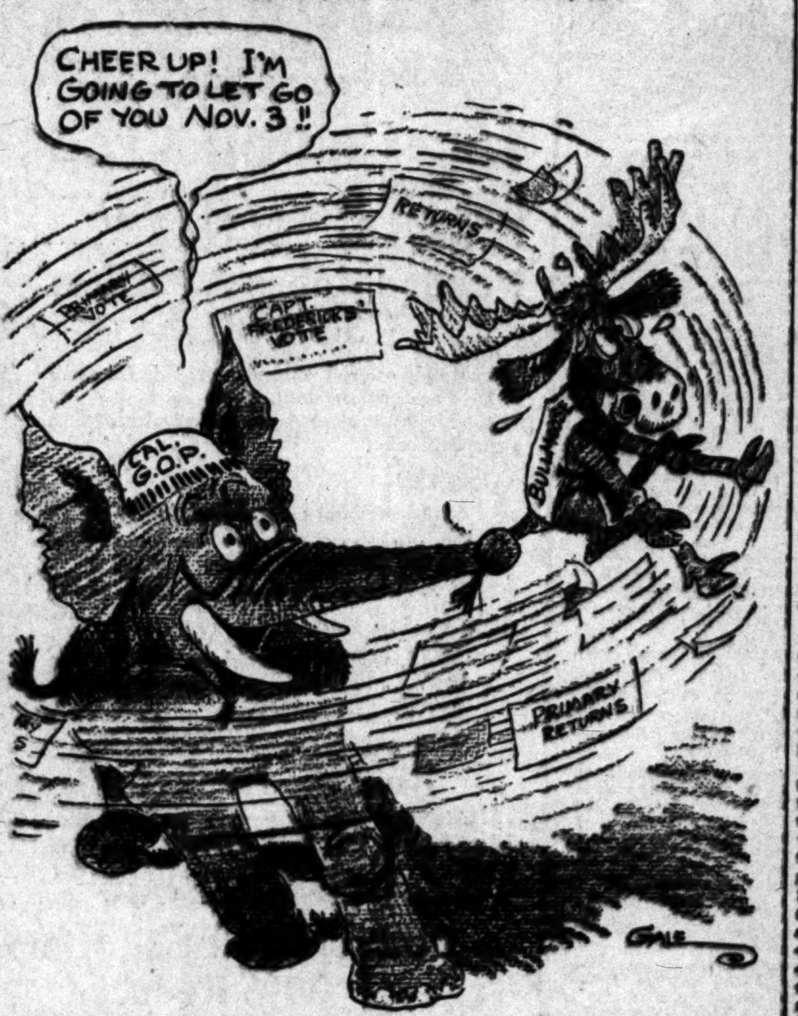
With the possible exception of a few minerals, everything for which we have been dependent upon Europe can be supplied by home industry, and supplied profitably. The opportunity has been actually thrust upon us. The timid and the slow-minded may hesitate, and they will be crowded away from the profits by the more keen-sighted and enterprising of Americans, who see the chances and take them.

Now is the time for the man with the idea, for the man with money—big and little sums—to make investments that will pay in terms of rich interest. Such an opportunity was never presented to any nation in the history of the world. Such an opportunity may never come again. The United States must not only feed and clothe Europe, now and for many years to come, but it must feed and clothe our own people. Additionally, it is freed from fierce and cunning commercial competition in the Orient, in the Latin-American States. We need factories and mills, we need more grain, more fruit, more canned goods—we need everything that is essential to life and comfort, and need it in quantities that can scarcely be overestimated.

Opportunity is here—the forelock which the ancient Greeks attributed to opportunity is bobbing within reach of every man's hand. A year from now may be too late; two years from now will be. Enterprising men will have set the plans to working; and those who were timid, those who hesitated will be left to mumble tales of what might have been "if" they had only done so and so.

Strike now. Get busy. "Full speed ahead"—and let Los Angeles, true to her traditions, make the most of these enormous possibilities to become one of the dominating commercial cities of the United States and of the world.

A Whirlwind Finish.



THE ADS ARE TRUE.

Some of the Los Angeles merchants have been printing advertisements in The Times lately that are better than news. They have been telling the public exactly how, where and why the war will later affect prices on many kinds of goods. Instead of raising prices in anticipation of this result the merchants are now selling goods at old prices and some are even making clearance sales at less than old prices. People who need things to wear and who have the money to spare will probably not be able to buy more reasonably than now for a long time to come.

FRANCHISES FOR POWER PLANTS

The House, by a vote of 187 to 45, defeated the Pinchot bill to give a monopoly of power plants to existing companies, and passed the Adamson bill to authorize the United States to issue permits for the construction by private parties of dams on navigable streams for power purposes, limited to terms of fifty years. Since it was determined to legislate on the subject at all, and to take away from the States their ownership to the waters of rivers, the Adamson bill is probably the fairest that could be devised.

THE SHORTCAKE.

WALT MASON IN THE TIMES.

Aunt Julia knows just what will please the masculine galoot, and from the tall strawberry trees she plucks the crimson fruit. Then in the kitchen she proceeds to mix some kind of dough, that will supply all human needs, and banish grief and woe. Her formula? I know it not—she keeps it 'neath her tile; but oh, her shortcake, steaming hot, would make a Timon smile! She dishes up a gorgeous lump, a chunk the gods might eat, with cream that never knew a pump, and sugar that is sweet. At restaurants and big hotels much shortcake have I bought, and drearily the mem'ry dwells within my dome of thought; they use one berry to a cake—which berry is a scream—and it goes swimming in a lake of blue and ghastly cream. Go, tour the world from Nome to Rome, no shortcakes will you find; such things are only made at home, by aunts of earnest mind. Not all the skill of learned savants who cook for queens and kings, can take the laurels from our aunts in berry time, by jings.

THEOLOGY AND GEOLOGY.

BY TOM FITCH.

The great English hydraulic engineer, Sir William Willcocks, built the Assouan dam in Egypt, which reclaimed to fertility vast tracts of barren land. He spent some time in the valley of the Euphrates and explored the alleged site of the Garden of Eden. He arrived at the conclusion that when Moses wrote the Pentateuch he indulged largely in allegory and was a good deal off in his chronology.

But science has confirmed the geological accuracy of the first chapter of Genesis, Sir William Willcocks and Ingersoll to the contrary notwithstanding. Except that millions of years are described as days, the account that Moses gives of the creation is not successfully challenged by the researches of modern science.

"In the beginning," says the first chapter of Genesis, "God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep."

Scientists agree that the earth was formed by a process of condensation from a dark, chaotic mist, and that this process created light. Genesis says: "And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, 'Let there be light;' and there was light."

Moses describes the making of seas and land, the advent of grass and trees, the coming into existence of sun, moon and stars, the filling of the waters with fish and the air and earth with winged creatures, the making of beasts and cattle, and everything that creepeth upon the earth, and finally man.

Huxley and Darwin and Tyndall agree that "in the beginning" the earth was a nebulous mist, "without form and void," and that it was revolved through space by force, which is another name for "the spirit of God." Then came the vast series of progressive changes. The featureless globe of fire evolved by force from chaos and night, the making of seas and shores, the uplifting of mountains, the leaping of cataracts, the construction of the solar system, the filling of ocean and river with fish, the development of insect and bird and animal life, and finally man:

"In form and moving how express and admirable.
In action how like an angel. In apprehension how like a god.
The beauty of the world, the paragon of animals."

Conceding the accuracy of Moses in describing the making of the world, the consensus of opinion today, even among orthodox Christians, is that in his recital of what followed the evolution of man from lower forms of organic life Moses indulged in allegory. Few believe in the literal truth of the description of Moses of the manner in which Eve was formed from the rib of a cowardly creature who afterward gave her away instead of standing by her. Adam was a poor specimen of a man to start a world with. How much more we would have respected him if he had said, "Yes, Lord, I ate the apple and am ready to take my medicine."

The story of the flood is incredible. It was born probably of the exuberance of the imagination of Moses. Sir William Willcocks—who carefully examined that country—says that the word Ararat in the original Hebrew means a desert as well as a mountain, and that to have submerged that section of the earth according to the Mosaic account of the flood would have required a rainfall of 5000 inches per day for a period of forty days.

It taxes credulity to believe in the literal truth of the statement of Moses that the walls of Jericho were thrown down by one blast from a cornet, or that the sun ever stood still at the command of Capt. Joshua, or that the Israelites were forty years in crossing a country that might be traversed by a modern auto between daylight and dark, or by a mule team in a week.

Christianity has not really suffered at the Old Testament allegories having been disproved by modern science as recitals of fact. It does not impair the truth and the value to humanity of the splendid system of ethics and philosophy taught by Christ Jesus to disbelieve in the literal truth of the allegories of Moses, or that David was a man "after God's own heart" when he placed Uriah in the front of battle in order that he might place his widow in his harem, or that Isaiah preached any other gospel than that of despair.

The miracles performed by Jesus were benevolent miracles. He cured the sick, he raised the dead, he fed the hungry, he forgave the erring, and modern psychological science has almost accounted for the walk on the water and the changing of water into wine.

The church has advanced with the times. Fifty years ago Colenso was excommunicated by the Church of England for questioning the inspiration of the geological details of the book of Genesis. A few centuries earlier excommunication would have been followed by incineration.

All these conditions have now changed. The Low Church party in England, which contains a large majority of the members and an overwhelming majority of the brains of the Episcopal church, has declared for freedom of conscience with respect to dogma. It declares "that the clergy must be permitted to restate and interpret dogmatic Christianity, as presented in the creeds, so as to bring it into harmony with the results of modern research."

The Bishop of Oxford is the only ecclesiastic who will not yield to the demand for such reformation of orthodoxy as will bring it in harmony with modern science. He insists that true believers will sit upon damp clouds hereafter and play on literal harps forever, while those who differ with them will add to the fuel pile downstairs. But the bishop stands among the Anglican clergy almost alone in his adherence to eighteenth century orthodoxy. The Dean of Durham, described as "the keenest controversialist in the Established Church," and Dr. Sanday, "the scholar of the Church of England," are outspoken against the views of the Bishop of Oxford. "The Hulsean professor of divinity at Cambridge," says a critic of the bishop, "cannot make the lie of the Athanasian creed true by reducing its repetition to one Sunday out of fifty-two, whilst the professor of archeology at Oxford carefully explains that the Bishop of Oxford's definition of orthodoxy suffers from the misfortune of representing nothing but his own opinion."

HOGAN'S TAME HOUSE CATS CHASED OUT TWICE

Win Both.

ANGELS TAKE SECOND PLACE.

Take Both Games from the Pussies.

Makes Four in Row for Papa's Athletes.

Check and Perritt Each Win a Game.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Papa's onrushing and uprising athletes entertained no feeling of pity for the Pussies yesterday.

They boot-jacked them twice, and in so doing onrushed and uprose into second place.

This all-day triumph also gave the Angels the business end of the series with five games against two for the Pussies.

PLAY TODAY.

Four beatings in two days has just about taken the sap out of the Pussies, but they will come back for more this afternoon. Monday is generally given over to washing the club uniforms. The athletes also usually remain in bed that day while getting their regular street pants pressed. But these and other household duties will have to go over for a week, a lot of unfinished business having accumulated. Today's game will be the tenth of the series, and shows a lot of enterprise.

In the mush pastime, Chech beat Klepfer, 9 to 4. Ed's support was all to the punkerino. The fifth inning of this game witnessed a sad accident to Mr. Elliott. One of Klepfer's fast ones caught him on the right hand, bending it back until it rested against his stalwart wrist. It is not believed he will be able to grasp a case knife again for a week or more. This means, of course, that Mr. Elliott will be forced to forego the pleasure of eating mashed potatoes and gravy for the time being. Fortunately the club is carrying a lot of substitutes, and it is probable that one of these will do the eating for him.

SUBSTITUTES.

Hogan and two other catchers finished the game.

Repairing to the business section of Los Angeles, the Angels knocked the well-known wadding out of Rhino Hitt, beating the dreaded southpaw, 7 to 3. After thinking it over, Rhino is glad that he didn't carry out his threat to pitch two games yesterday. Perritt did the pitching for Los Angeles.

Hap caught seven innings of the afternoon game, but pried himself out of the wreck of blasted hopes after the Angels had swiped four bases off him. McClain, who followed, was unable to stop the loot, Papa's athletes pilfering every base in the place in the ninth.

ANGELS START.

Los Angeles assumed the aggressive in the second, scoring a run. With two out, Rhino hit Ernie Johnson an awful crack on the wishbone. The puncture appeared to be serious, but after a time Ernie managed to get down to first base. He recuperated remarkably and stole second base, Hap throwing the ball into the war clouds, and Ernie going on to third. It has been suggested that Hap wear a black sleeve on his right arm, meaning that the same is dead. The suggestion is premature. No dead arm ever threw a ball into centerfield, and Hap can do that two or three times in almost any game. Johnson scored on a single by Boles. Wolter and Maggert landed on the ball for another tally in the third.

Wolter's batting eye has grown very robust. His accumulated efforts for the two games consisted of two triples, a double and two singles. He says that he expects to get into his stride early next month.

Wolter found Boles and Perritt on base in the fourth, and scored them with a triple far afield and over J. Kane.

TIGERS SCORE.

The Pussies whittled down this four-run lead slightly by scoring two in the sixth.

Carlisle drove to Johnson, who heaved the ball into the park fountain. Walt took second while the ball was

AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP.

MANCHESTER, (Vt.) Aug. 30—The links of the Ekwanok Country Club will be the scene this week of play for the twentieth amateur golf championship of the United States.

The field of players, like the course, is a premier one. Among those to dispute the title now held by Jerome D. Travers of Upper Monclair, N. J., are four former champions, W. J. Travis of New York, E. M. Byers and W. C. Fownes of Pittsburgh, and Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, as well as Francis Ouimet of Boston, the open champion of 1913 and Charles Evans Jr., of Chicago, holder of half a dozen western titles. Travers, Evans and Ouimet are equal favorites for the event.

Evans in practice had the best score of the day, going out in 39 and returning in 32 for a 71. Travers had a score of 73. Ouimet obtained a 77.

Harry Wolter, slugger.

LARGE PURSES UP AT SYRACUSE.

NEW YORK STATE FAIR OFFERS GRAND CIRCUIT HORSES $40,000 STAKES.

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) Aug. 30.—Forty thousand dollars has been offered in stakes and purses for the three-day meeting of the Grand Circuit in connection with the New York State Fair here this week. The programme includes thirteen races, five of which will make up the programme for tomorrow. The feature of the opening card will be the free-for-all pace for a $5000 stake. The five horses listed as starters are Frank Bogash, Jr., Walter Cochato, Braden Direct, Directum I and Early Jr.

L.A.A.C. RUGBY TEAM FORMING.

Fifteen Will Go North for Three Games.

Mow Mitchell Won't Try to Be Captain Again.

Will Play Big Series With Arden Club.

BY HOWARD W. ANGUS.

Out of the oblivion into which "Napoleon" Jack D'Aule and his intense enthusiasm for American football has plunged it, emerges the L.A.A.C. Rugby team as bold as life itself and seemingly as strong as ever.

Forty players will gather Friday night at 8 o'clock on the sixth floor of the club and elect the 1914 captain. That will be the starting signal. Then the work will begin of segregating the sheep from the goats and whipping together a genuine fifteen with subs who are capable of stepping into the holes without clogging the play.

NORTHERN TRIP.

The magnet that is drawing every Rugby player of prominence and ability to the club is a ten-day trip to the north. There will be games with the Olympic Club, Santa Clara College and the Davis Farm fifteen.

A northern trip is not to be despised. To be the guests of the Olympic Club is a pleasure that more than compensates for all the bruises and bumps of a thousand afternoons of practice. So the Rugby clans are gathering.

Bob Weaver, manager of the fifteen, is particularly pleased with the trip to San Francisco. He has a big stick to wield over the players

COLUMBINE WINS "PAST PERFORMANCE HANDICAP."

Old Packing Racer Detroit Fails to Come Back and Withdraws from Race—Alert Picks Up With Freshening Wind and Annexes Albert Killian Silver Cup and Second Place.

BY E. D. SEWARD,
Secretary of South Coast Yacht Club.

Yacht.	Skipper.	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.	Corrected Time.
Columbine	A. G. Sepulveda	1:10:20	5:17:42	4:07:42	4:07:42
Alert	H. N. Logan	1:10:40	5:31:00	4:21:00	4:07:45
Vite	Joe Fellows	1:10:49	5:43:22	4:33:22	4:09:40
Detroit	Wm. La Plante	1:11:18	(Did not finish.)

By beating the fleet racing sloop Alert by the narrow margin of just three seconds, the Yacht Columbine, sailed by her owner, Capt. A. G. Sepulveda, won the W. S. Wright silver cup yesterday afternoon in the "past performance handicap" event of the South Coast Yacht Club, the race being over a windward and leeward course of eighteen nautical miles to Point Vincente buoy and return.

In taking second place the Alert, sailed by Capt. H. Newell Logan, annexed the Albert Killian cup. The veteran skipper, designer and yacht builder, Joe Fellows, sailed his latest yacht creation, the sloop Vite, owned by Rear-Commodore Ben P. Weston, and was forced to the conclusion that the Vite is not as fast as she should be. The Columbine beat her by a minute and nine second margin over the time she has averaged in two previous races.

That the dope prepared by the Regatta Committee was close figuring is shown by the result in the corrected time of the three racers, less than two minutes elapsing between the three.

The old racing packet Detroit, now owned by William la Plante, was seen in a race today for the first time in many years. With no performance to go on, no rating was given the racer, but the poor showing made at the start caused La Plante to withdraw early in the race.

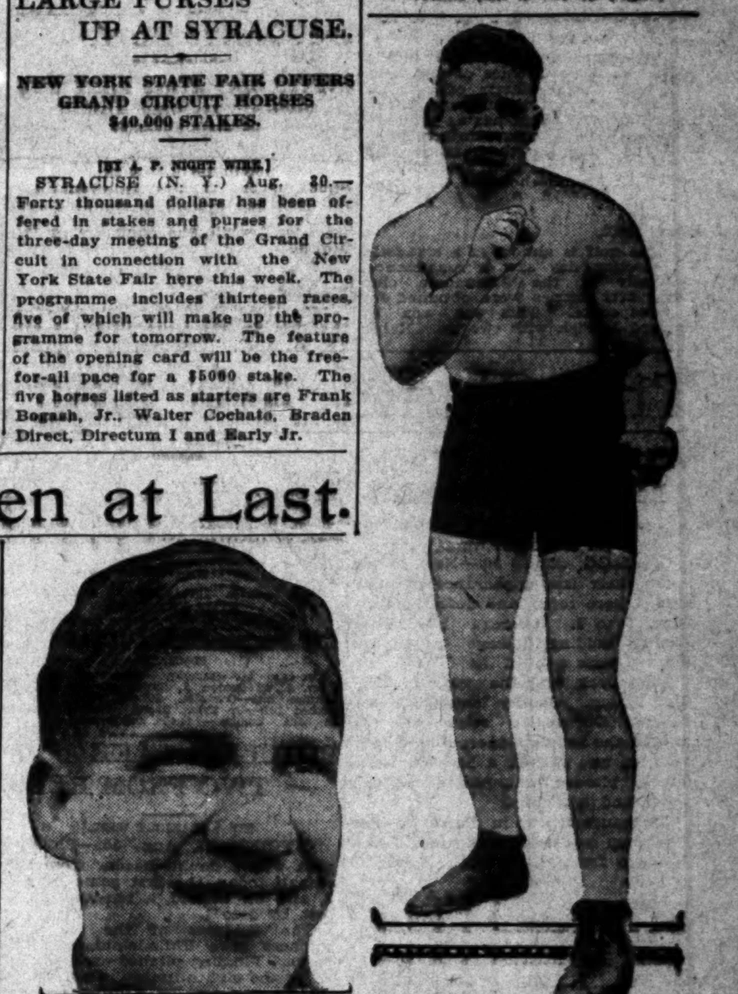
Light winds prevailed at 1:10 p.m. when the Regatta Committee pulled the starting gun from the power cruiser Gray Fox in command of her new owner, Capt. Weston. Columbine led out from the end of the breakwater twenty seconds behind the flash. Logan in the Alert was twenty seconds behind, while Joe Fellows in the Vite crossed at 1:10:49. The Detroit did not get over until 1:11:18.

Columbine held her lead in a series of short tacks up the coast into the wind. Although the Vite is a foot bigger than the Alert, Fellows was unable to see anything but the heels of the trim racer. The Detroit was outclassed from the start.

The windward mark was rounded in the following order: Columbine, 3:28:15; Alert, 3:42:18; Vite, 3:57:50. With both ballooners and spinnakers set the yachts made a pretty picture on the free run down the wind. Alert had lost all of her allowance at the mark and forty-eight seconds besides and was considered out of the running for first place.

But the wind freshening when near the finish caused the Alert to pick up on the Columbine, the latter actually losing forty-five seconds on this leg of the race. Although Joe Fellows and his able crew did valiant work on the Vite she sailed, as usual, "like she had a bucket hung on her tail."

Columbine finished at 5:17:42; Alert, 5:31:00; Vite, 5:43:22. As the Alert was twenty seconds behind the Columbine on crossing it is seen that had she been up with her at the start she could have won the race by seventeen seconds.



The rival sluggers.

Joe Rivers, at the left, is the bronzed young gent who recently suffered an "unfortunate reversal" at the hands of Leach Cross, the eminent dentist. Mr. Beecher expects to repeat the operation with a little more force a week from today.

Sounds Bad for Joe.

DIME SAYS BEECHER HAD BRITTON IN A BAD WAY.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

WILLIS BEECHER, who is to meet Joe Rivers one week from tomorrow, got down to his real training stunts yesterday afternoon at Jack Doyle's training camp.

He had trained ten days for Red Watson, when the match was called off, and was fit and strong enough to meet any man in his class, at that time, so he has been taking things easily for the past week.

Beecher is not a sensational boxer in his training, but I got it straight from Jimmie Dime, who, by the way, is one of the best judges of a boxer in the game, that Willie is a tough customer to beat.

Dime said, "I saw Beecher put the clever Jack Britton down several times in New York City, and he had Britton in a bad way. He is one of the toughest boys in his class today, and it will take a great lightweight to beat him. He appears 100 per cent. better in a contest than in his training. I have never seen Joe Rivers in action, but I honestly believe Beecher will give the Mexican a great fight."

Hughie Campbell, the well-known boxing fan, verifies what Dime says. Campbell has seen Beecher in several contests in New York, and is one of his best boosters. "I believe that Beecher will beat Rivers," said Hughie yesterday afternoon. "Believe me, he is some tough boy and any man who beats him, will surely know he has been in a boxing contest."

From the opinions of these men, I would say that Joe Rivers has a tough job on his hands next Monday afternoon.

George Chip and Tom McMahon also worked out yesterday afternoon at Doyle's. Both boxers are in the best of condition. Chip is to meet Billy Murray in San Francisco on Labor

Local Golfers Soon to Invade the North.

DEL MONTE A GOLF MECCA.

Armstrong Has a Chance for the Title.

Miss Mellus After Women's Championship.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

There is to be quite a large and stylish contingent of women players at Del Monte this time and from the South Miss Katherine Mellus, Mrs. Fred Griffith, Mrs. Henry Van Dyke, Mrs. Robert Farquhar, Mrs. Guy Cochrane and Mrs. Dudley Fulton will all take part. Mrs. Arthur Braly and Mrs. Jack Jevne have not taken up golf very seriously as yet but they may be induced to swell the crowd of Southern contestants, as Mrs. Fulton was the year before last, when, mere novice that she was, she captured a fourth flight prize.

A great many of our players are already on the scene of action. Edward Tufts, Jack Jevne and E. H. Bagby went up on Friday, and E. S. Armstrong, Arthur Braly, H. Jevne and several others have been up there for a couple of weeks.

Going.

Dr. and Mrs. West Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Farquhar, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Dyke, Eric Kobbe, Charles H. Biggar, and the rest of the Annandale contigent will go up this week. Several waverers like S. S. Parsons, who won the sweepstakes on Saturday with three up, have not yet quite decided whether Del Monte shall know them or not this year but the lure will probably be too strong for them in the end.

A number of the professionals will be there, Frank Peebles of the Midwick and Ernest Martin of the Los Angeles Country club, amongst them. No professional event has as yet been scheduled but the amateurs invariably put up a purse for them at the end of the tournament and are unlikely to abolish so time-honored a custom.

Home Golf.

Home golf is almost at a standstill but election day saw a renaissance, especially at the Annandale club where fifty entries were obtained for a sweepstake. This was won by Howard J. Fish with two up. Ralph Harris came second with one up and G. H. Curtis third with one down.

Dr. West Hughes has been appointed official handicaper at Annandale and he has instituted one new method that is proving very satisfactory. In all such competitions he starts them on half their handicap in holes up, thus Mr. Fish has twelve handicap and started six up.

Out at the Los Angeles Country Club they maintain the Saturday sweepstake, but there were only fourteen entires in the last, which Mr. Parsons won.

Nothing Doing.

The Midwick is almost deserted. Even those merry Saturday dinner parties have been discontinued until after Del Monte and as the golf course is undergoing drastic alterations and improvements, there has been little or no golf.

The J. V. Eliots have bought a large orange ranch near Covina, which is within comfortable distance of the Midwick, which they will doubtless patronize almost exclusively now. They sold that Oak Knoll residence to R. D. Davis a little while ago. There is no talk of them going to Del Monte this year.

Out at San Gabriel the golf course is well populated on Saturdays and Sundays, but their only events are the monthly medal play competitions, the next of which takes place next week end while the stars are at Del Monte.

Women's Events.

Miss Edith Cheeseborough, who lost the title for the women's Del Monte championship to Miss Alice Warner last year will make a strenuous effort to regain her laurels, according to the Pacific Coast Golf Magazine, and Mrs. A. R. Pommer of San Francisco is to be another strong contestant. Miss Cheeseborough has been regarded as almost invincible up till last year and that final match in which Miss Alice Warner wrested the title from her will be one of the events in Del Monte history. San Francisco golf reporters, with whom Miss Cheeseborough is something of an idol, nearly wept and no less than three of them started their newspaper dispatches with "La reine est mort, vive la reine" when they came to write the tragic story of her defeat!

Miss Alice Warner has since married and it would appear from the news that filters through that she will not be a contestant this time.

The programme teems with interesting golf events for women and many are the handsome prizes offered. Besides the Del Monte championship and as many additional flights of eight as the company warrants, there are tombstone tournaments, consolation handicaps and mixed foursomes.

Enjoyment.

Women golfers can be sure of a good time at Del Monte. The week is given over to golf and she to whom golf has ceased to be a bore can enjoy every minute of the days. But woe betide the sojourner to whom golf is anathema. She is a sorrowful maid indeed, who cannot even listen intelligently to details of the game of games.

Of our southern contenders, both Mrs. Van Dyke and Miss Katherine Mellus will make a strong bid for honors. Miss Mellus has a great weakness for runner-up-ships, a position she has filled with distinction so many times that she is in the fatal position of the pretty bridesmaid who has officiated in that capacity so often that she has spoiled her luck. "Thrice a bridesmaid, never a bride" is one of those horrid old proverbs that undermines one's conquering abilities. Goodness knows what fate holds for the golfer who has been several times runner-up.

In the meantime the sober and decorous pastime of golf seems entirely compatible with the solemnity of war. It is being played in such a very serious way, and we take ourselves in such deadly earnest, that no one could accuse us of frivolous intent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—New York made their last appearance of the season here today and defeated Chicago, 8 to 1. Tesreau had little trouble holding Chicago safe. He did not pass a man.

New York won the game in the first inning. Cheney lasted but one inning. During his reign on the mound the league leaders scored four runs on two singles, a base on balls, hit by pitched ball, passed ball, an error and a double.

Tesreau eased up in the ninth after two men were out and this saved Chicago from a shutout. Score:

PHILLIES TAKE TWO FROM REDS.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30.—Philadelphia won a double-header from Cincinnati today, the first game by 4 to 2, and the second, a ten-inning contest, by 2 to 1.

The wildness of the Cincinnati pitchers gave Philadelphia the first game. Yingling pitched excellent ball up to the eighth inning, when he was hit for a single by Killifer, the first man up, and then passed the next two batters. With the bases full, he was taken out and Schneider went into the box. Schneider was also wild and passed the first man that faced him and hit the second, forcing in two runs. A sacrifice by Cravath and the squeeze play on Paskert's sacrifice hit brought in the other two runs.

The second game was a pitchers' battle, Philadelphia finally winning out in the tenth inning on Becker's triple and Byrne's sacrifice hit. Scores: First game:

EARL KYLE AFTER RACE WITH DUKE.

SAN DIEGO SWIMMER THINKS HE IS A BETTER MAN THAN KAHANAMOKU.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 30.—Earl Kyle of the Aquatic Club is in training to challenge Duke Kahanamoku of the Los Angeles Athletic Club to a fifty-yard swim. Since the defeat of the Duke by Charlie Small July 4, Kyle is of the opinion that he can defeat him. Kyle, who has spent the great part of his life in the art of swimming, is known as San Diego's fastest man at that distance.

baseball attention throughout the week. St. Louis and Chicago added to the excitement caused by Boston's remarkable spurt to catch New York. The Cardinals drew so close at one period that it was possible for them to take the lead as the result of one day's play. Chicago also worked dangerously near.

American League interest is now confined to struggles for positions. So far as percentage points indicate, Boston has less chance of catching the Athletics than Pittsburgh, the last-place club in the National League, has of nosing out the Giants. The figures show the Mackmen to be thirteen games ahead of the Red Sox, while Pittsburgh is only twelve games behind New York.

In the Federal League, Indianapolis entered the home stretch with a lead that may be hard to overcome.

Nine Games Here.

This will be another fat week here with the Tigers and Oaks trying to work nine games off the slate. Los Angeles will meet the Seals in the north, and Portland will play the Wolves in Sacramento.

On past dope, the week's alignment favors Portland. The Beavers have taken sixteen out of twenty-five from the Wolves already so far. San Francisco has beaten Los Angeles eighteen out of twenty-eight, while Oakland has been tough for Venice all season. Here is the dope on them:

	P.	L. A.	S. F.	V.	S.	O.	Won.

Tigers in Distress.

The Tigers are getting their hard luck in lumps. The crippling of Elliott, following the injury to Bliss, leaves the club without a regular backstop. McClain is inexperienced, while Lewis is unfamiliar with the batters of the league, and this places him at a terrible disadvantage in handling the pitchers. Hogan gamely tried to stem the tide of adversity by getting in the game himself, but his long layoff has not left him in shape to show his old-time form. Litschi, who, with the possible exception of Metzger, was playing the best third base in the league, is temporarily shelved with a sore arm. Leard got back into the game at second yesterday afternoon, but is still somewhat handicapped by his bad leg.

Has Worm Turned?

The Angels are making a better showing against the Tigers this season than at any time since the first year that the Tigers were whelped. They have taken the last two series. The first three were won by Venice. There is one more series to be played between the clubs. Is it possible that the "woim" has done a flip-flop?

U. Gene Doyle is sad and refuses to be comforted, and that is a most alarming condition for a press agent. U. Gene this week presented 11,000 reasons why the Tigers should win, but this didn't seem to help them much.

Why Wolter Hits to Right.

Probably a vast majority of our people have observed that Harry Wolter, the well-known outfielder, is a dead right-field hitter.

It is true that a single once in a while slips off his bat into left, and that he occasionally hits medium speed into center, but probably nine out of ten of his hits seek right field.

This is not entirely due to the fact that he is a left-handed batter, for Ernie Johnson, who is a southpaw batter, hits mostly to left.

Wolter's leaning toward right field in his hitting is to a certain extent the result of early training.

In his bush days, the former Highlander played ball with a semi-pro team in Monterey when things were dull in the oil fields. The club was known as the Monterey Macaroons, meaning that it was a very sweet ball team.

The Monterey grounds differed from the general run of grounds in that there was a large and promising mud puddle in right field. This puddle flourished at all times of the year. At first the mud puddle was regarded as a useless institution and an incumbrance. From time to time there was talk of abolishing the puddle.

Then suddenly a bright batter discovered a use for the puddle. He accidently knocked the ball into it, and the right fielder got mired up to his ears trying to field it. It took some time and considerable expense to get him out.

It then became the law of Monterey that any ball hit into the puddle should go for a home run.

Wolter quickly saw the advantage to be gained by right field hitting, and began practicing, using the puddle as a target. He got so that he could hit that puddle in the bullseye almost every rattle out of the box. That season he made more home runs than he did singles.

But that puddle, the birthplace of Wolter as a right-field hitter, soon ceased to exist. Wolter filled it up with home runs. He still mourns the loss of the puddle, but seeks solace from time to time by hitting the ball into the right-field bleachers at Washington Park.

NOT RUNNING.

Mow Mitchell, probably the greatest first five America has produced, will not run for captain again. The famous ex-Cardinal has had enough. He wants to get into the rank and file once more, where he can play for the sheer love of playing without a worry to trouble him.

Rumor has it that Herm Alber, Ed Caley or "Truck" Manning will shoulder the responsibility of leadership. Alber was the Trojan captain last fall and is a little fighter and a hard worker. He has enthusiasm to burn.

Ed Caley is the come back. He was one of the huskies who stood and fell with "Pat" Higgins when he tried to prove Rugby a good game by playing the American brand.

THE CANDIDATES.

Manning was once a Trojan captain himself, to say nothing of his being a U.S.C. coach. From these three comes the captain, unless some politician gets busy and runs the dreaded dark horse.

The club team will play every high school fifteen in the south that is willing to meet it. Riverside and Pomona will take the clubmen into the orange belt. The city high schools will all take a chance.

But the big series is to be the one with the Arden Club. This is to be a five-game series for the Silverwood trophy, emblematic of the championship of the south.

Last year the Arden Club was nothing. This year it is everything. The enthusiasm of two or three Englishmen for the home land game brought it into being. It did not take long for them to gather an impressive squad together.

WILL FIGHT.

Rugby is not going down without a fight. Its supporters have the same feeling toward Southern California that France has toward Alsace and Lorraine. If Rugby can not be taught in the colleges and universities they will keep it alive in the clubs.

All of the old players are rallying to the L.A.A.C. colors and those who are not are with Arden. Among the forty that Bob Weaver promises to have on tap during the fall are Mow Mitchell, Stan Mitchell, Ted Geisler, Phil Harrigan, Truck Manning, Ed Caley, Herm Alber, Pat Maguire, Gene Fishburn, Toolan, Teschke, Malone, Sheedy, Lee Boyle, Walton, Sweeney, Donnellan, Tutton, Reynolds, Allen and Meade.

Such names prove that Rugby will make a strong fight in the south and that the English game will be more than a prep sport.

LONG BEACH SOX TAKE A LICKING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 30.—In the closest and most exciting game of the summer season, the Hat Box baseball nine of Los Angeles scored a close victory over the Long Beach White Sox, so called because their hosiery is gray, on the harbor baseball diamond this afternoon by the score of 1 to 0.

The hatters scored their lone tally in the fifth inning on an error on the part of the locals, an overthrow to short. Forest Meyers, who disclaims any relationship to Chief Meyers of the Giants, assumed the mound duty for the White Sox, striking out five men and allowing but one hit in five innings.

Hansleman, who flourished in the days of the ill-fated Southern California Baseball League two years ago, finished the game for Long Beach, duplicating Meyers's record of five strikeouts and the allowance of a single bingle. Perode did the receiving for the locals.

Long Beach touched McClure of the head-covering establishment aggregation for six hits, but could not bunch them effectively enough to score. Snyder caught for the Hat Box nine. Long Beach made four errors to the visitors' three.

A.A.U. SECRETARY COMING TO COAST.

JAMES E. SULLIVAN TO VISIT WITH TUDOR S. RODGERS OF SAN DIEGO.

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 30.—James E. Sullivan, secretary and treasurer of the A.A.U., will visit San Diego in the near future as the guest of Tudor S. Rodgers, local representative of the A.A.U.

Yale University's new stadium at New Haven is being rushed to completion. Yale will play all its games previous to the contest with Harvard Saturday, November 21, on the old field. The stadium will seat 60,000 and have standing room for 12,000 more. The builders of the bowl have colored the cement that will be poured in for the seats, giving it a slate tone which it is claimed will be restful to the eyes. There is talk of raising the price for seats.

PORTLAND STILL LEADING COAST LEAGUE AT PLATE.

Dillon, Hogan and Howard Set Their Hirelings Good Examples—Fisher of Portland Is the Leading Hitter. Wolter Climbs Up to 312 Mark—Meloan, In Spite of Tiger Slump, Hits Well.

PORTLAND continues to prove that the Athletics have the right idea—that hitting the ball hard and often wins pennants. Their team average is .284. The Oakland club is second with .268, which is contrary to the rule, since they are in last place.

Capt. Dillon, Del Howard and Hap. Hogan are all over the .300 mark. They do not go to the plate often, but they are setting their team mates a good example.

Fisher of Portland is the league's leading hitter with an average of .350. Elliott of Venice is not far behind with .315. These two catchers are hitting at a merry rate.

Wolter has climbed up to the .312 mark, while Rube Ellis has tumbled down to .303. Meloan of the Tigers, in spite of the slump, continues to click the willow at .306. Abstein, the Angel first sacker who makes it a rule to get a hit a game, is batting at .313.

Jack Ryan of the Angels is the leading hitting pitcher with an average of .310. Maggert is a .300 man.

Alex Pantages is Christopher Columbus of New Talent.

Watchful.

KEEPS HIS EYE ON PROSPECTS.

Vaudeville Boss Has Made Discoveries.

Scenario Writing Champion in Town.

San Diego Girl Making Piles of Money.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

Alexander Pantages is the Columbus of western vaudeville. The commander of a fleet of vaudeville houses has discovered a lot of new vaudevillains here this summer, including everything from trained bears to grand opera, from Izzy to Ibsen.

Mr. Pantages never leaves anything to chance, but personally supervises the tryouts, those painful affairs that are pulled off every Saturday morning in his theater. While he's rather impatient with members of the bunk bazaar, he goes to any amount of trouble to help anybody with a grain of talent.

Busy.

I found him the other morning floor-managing about four acts at once. He caroled something for a little grand opera singer, while he showed the prop man how to set a table with the plaster-of-paris supper that the hick throws at his wife; stopping a minute to tell a trained seal impresario how to keep his seals from taking seats in the boxes, and showing a girl with an impediment in her limbs how to do the grape vine so as not to have it all vine.

Presently on tripped a dainty little girl, who began to recite long serious Ibsen things. She ran on like the brook. Presently the little manager grew restless, and by and by somebody went up on the stage and when she had finished whispered something to her. She went very pale at first, then very red. Then a dimple came out, and an unctuous little smile spread over her face like sunlight, and next moment she laughed. She hopped down and came over to Mr. Pantages. "You're right!" she laughed. "I guess that heavy stuff was never for me."

Comedienne.

The word Mr. Pantages had sent up was that she was to chuck Melpomene and take on Thalia. In other words, that she was a comedienne and not a tragedienne. That little girl was Dorothy Barrett, and Mr. Pantages has backed up his words by sending her to a special coacher to prepare her for his stage, because he believes she has a future.

Next moment a couple of acrobats got the good news, and went away registering joy.

Today another set of Mr. Pantages's discoveries goes on. They are Dorothy Duncan and Percy Goldenson, whose clever amateur work in this city has made them hosts of friends.

Betty Blythe made her debut here also, and is reported to be going on "the big time" in the East very soon.

More Stars.

Other blue-ribbon winners of the week are a pretty little Italian singer with a big voice, named Floria Piccola, whom Mr. Pantages calls the "little Tetrazzini." She will travel with the Italian Grand Opera Company that has been pleasing Pantages audiences during the past week, and will be given some good parts.

It was Pantages, too, who discovered Woods and Weber, with the Texas Tommy, and sent them East to set New York afire with the new dance.

Others whom he has Columbused are Elsa Grosser, violinist; the Hawaiian act of Carl Alisky's, and Alla Zandoff, violinist.

These were all Los Angeles people. Up north his record is even greater.

Enter Loew.

Today Marcus Loew takes over formally all the Sullivan-Considine houses and the Empress inaugurates its new policy of six acts, four shows a day, the session beginning at 1 o'clock and lasting until 11 p.m.

Mr. Loew now owns a flock of a hundred theaters, which means controlling 600 acts a week.

Naturally all the other circuits are sitting up and taking notice.

Scenario Champ.

The Sultana of Scenario Writers is in town! She is a little girl named Anita Loos, and she has written and staged more plays than Shakespeare.

Miss Loos writes funny plays for the Komic and noble drama for the Biograph. Says "she lifts 'em up with the Biograph and lets 'em down with the Komic." She is only 21, but is one of the highest paid film-dramatists in the world. She has never missed a tick in landing her plays, and has been writing since she was 14.

Cute.

Anita is a tiny creature with big, talky brown eyes, an oval face, and a nose "tip-tilted like the petal to a rose." Over at the Angelus Hotel, yesterday, she sat on a trunk and told me the funny plots of her plays, laughing ingenuously, quite as if they were somebody else's stories.

"Where do I get my ideas for my film plays? Well, I live in San Diego," she answers illuminatingly, "and naturally get 'em all out of my head. I have a notebook, and whenever I feel an idea come on, I jot it down. I work in the morning, consulting my notebook, and writing the play that I feel most like writing.

No Scenery.

"A studio and scenery like that? Oh, dear, no," she laughs, "only a rickety old desk and a typewriter that skids every other line.

"My inspiration? Well, it's Dumas for coffee, and Coleridge for dope; the soda-water fountain for mine!"

One must admit she gets a lot more action out of the fizz stuff than the ordinary individual. Probably sucking a lemon would bring the same result.

Her time is worth more than the President's, for she writes a photoplay in half an hour, and never receives less than $25 a reel for her work. She has received as high as $75 a reel. She writes at least one photoplay a day, sometimes more.

Wit.

She interlards her scenarios with spontaneous witticisms. "About the 'Fatal Dress Suit,'" she says, "Dave Griffith says he only gets two laughs a year, and he got one of them out of that. In that play, where the heroine is pursued by the Villains' Union, I put in the line, 'Again she spurned him, thereby winning the spurning championship of the world.'"

Much Advice.

She has a lot of advice for moving picture writers. In the first place, moving picture managers don't sport hoofs and horns at all. They are human beings always on the lookout for new ideas, which they gladly grab and pay well for. Sometimes, like Frank Wood of the Biograph Company and Lawrence McClosky of the Lubin Company, they take all kinds of trouble to develop new writers, writing them reams regarding their work.

Also, she says, don't bother about technique. Just write your stories out in plain form, and send them on.

"Farce and comedy pay better than melodrama and tragedy. If you want to make a hit send in a good comedy idea.

Symphony Opening.

The Symphony Theater, newest addition to the film family, made its bow to a big crowd last Saturday evening.

"The Lure" was the photoplay given, and met with a big reception. Capacity houses crowded the pretty auditorium.

The orchestra is a special feature of the house, and gave a special concert, and the saxophone solo of Miss Helen D'Arcy was a pleasant feature of the programme.

INDIANS COMING DOWN FOR FRESNO TRY-OUTS.

Albert Ray to Run in Long-Distance Events—Meet of September 9 at Y.M.C.A. Field to Bring Famous Athletes Into Action—Weaver Hopes to Raise Money.

Athletes all over the south have awakened to the try-out meet to be held on the Y.M.C.A. field September 9 for the purpose of selecting a Southern California team to compete in the Fresno Fair meet October 2. Entries have been coming in for a week. In order to encourage the in-pour, Bob Weaver will mail entry blanks to every prominent track man in the south today.

The committee in charge of the San Joaquin meet will defray the expenses of ten men. Whatever money is taken in at the gate of the local meet will be used to send additional athletes north. As no medals will be given September 9 and no other expenses of an extreme kind will be contracted, all of the gate receipts will go for this purpose. The south should be generously represented.

INDIANS COMING.

Sherman Institute will send down three men for the try-outs, among them the famous Albert Ray, winner of The Times Modified Marathon. Ray is a phenomenal athlete and should play havoc in the long distance events.

The Fresno Republican will hold a cross city race, five and three-quarter miles long. Ray and his Indian running mates will enter in this. Bob Weaver, who has an eye for business, has written to that newspaper, asking it to defray the expenses of the Indians to Fresno. This will take them outside of the limited ten and will give the south a chance to send still more athletes north.

Albert Ray performed the startling feat this summer of running the 880-yard run in 2m. 6s.; the mile in 4m. 26s., the two-mile in 9m. 44s.—all inside of two hours. This stamps the Indian as one of the most remarkable distance men in America. He is Olympic material.

All of the college athletes will be entered in the try-outs. King Fred Kelly and Ben Ward will step over the high hurdles. Harry Kirkpatrick may get out for the low. The ex-Tiger is without a peer in the south when it comes to speeding through the 220-yard barrier event.

DREW MAY BE HERE.

Howard Drew, the greatest century man in America, may be out in the sprints. His appearance at the try-outs should draw a crowd. There has been only one Drew since spikes were invented. The unbeatable negro boy can run like a rabbit and with the grace of a deer.

Fred Thomson, the all-round champion, will be out for the weight events. He may possibly step with Kelly over the high, all depending on how much training he can find time to do.

Charlie Borgstrom, the Trojan pole-vaulter, has promised to come down from Ventura for the meet.

These try-outs are to be one of those meets worth going to, one in which great athletes appear, men who would draw a crowd anywhere in the East.

The meet is to have a five-mile race. These are as scarce as chicken teeth here. Besides bringing Albert Ray into action, it will call forth men who have been in hiding and men who have never appeared on a southern track.

Chance for Her.

SAN DIEGO HOPES TO GET PACIFIC GUN SHOOT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 30.—San Diego has the opportunity to obtain the Pacific Coast handicap for the gun clubs, providing it can raise $1000. The interstate association will add $500 in prizes, so it will be well to raise the money at once. The site contemplated will be at Pacific Beach. The following letter to Secretary C. F. Disbrow explains itself:

"Mr. C. F. Disbrow, secretary-treasurer, Pastime Gun Club, San Diego, Cal., Dear Sir:

"Referring to the application of the Pastime Gun Club for the privilege of holding the Pacific Coast handicap tournament on its grounds in San Diego in 1915, this will be passed upon by our directors at their coming annual meeting in December.

"I have just returned from conducting this year's Pacific Coast handicap tournament at Portland, Or., and while on the west coast was in San Francisco and Los Angeles. We are pleased to inform you that the west coast gun clubs seem to be a unit in favor of giving the Pacific Coast handicap tournament to San Diego in 1915, and we hope that the Pastime Gun Club will be successful in securing said event.

"I will be pleased to hear from you concerning this tournament and any other gun club affairs of interest to the interstate association. Very truly yours,

"ELMER E. SHANER.

"Treasurer and Manager Interstate Association, Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 10, 1914."

Beecher at Work.

Day and Tom McMahon will meet Sailor Grande at Vallejo on September 8.

Chip was somewhat peeved when he read an article printed in a San Francisco paper intimating that he was not taking the best of care of himself, and that he was holding Billy Murray cheap.

Jimmie Dime was very indignant when he read the article, and I will also say, that I have seen Chip a number of times while he was not supposed to be in training, working out at Doyle's training camp.

Dime believes in having his boxers work during any spare time they have between fights and if any of the San Francisco fans believe George Chip will not be in good condition when he meets Murray again, they have another guess coming.

Yesterday afternoon, Chip and big Tom McMahon worked out for at least an hour and boxed three fast rounds. At the finish they both appeared in fine condition, and will be much better when they enter the ring. The real reason Chip did not go to Frisco sooner, was that Jimmie Dime was waiting for his wife, who arrived Friday.

Eddy McAuliff, Earl Mohans, bantamweight, worked out in great form for his coming semi-windup to the Rivers-Beecher contest.

He is to meet Earl Puryear, the Denver bantamweight and a great contest is looked for between these boys. The winner is scheduled to meet Young Thompson, the sensational San Diego boxer who has been going great guns down in that city for the past year.

Harry Smith, the catcher, sold to the New York Giants by the Savannah club, who will report this fall, was awarded the $500 diamond fob trophy offered by Chattanooga baseball men for being the most valuable player in the South Atlantic League.

Angels in Second Place.

being fished to the surface, and went to third on Leard's out. Kane singled infield to Johnson, but Carlisle didn't dare to score. He also hugged his base securely on Meloan's fly to Maggert. Abstein behaved cleverly in pulling down Maggert's throw, and in that way preventing Kane from taking second. Singles by Borton and Hosp scored both men, and made things more interesting. Joe Wilhoit, who everybody supposed was up in Victoria, then batted for McArdle. He was retired on Moore's clever assist. A moment later he bobbed up in right field, Kane quitting the place and Meloan shifting to center. Wildcat Rader, who in time hopes to become a regular Pussy, went in at short.

WOLTER AGAIN.

There was more successful human endeavor by the Angels in the seventh. Wolter led off with a festive double. Hosp made a nifty catch of Metzger's towering fly. Maggert's single established Wolter at third, and made it very simple for Mag to steal second. Abstein singled to center, Wolter scoring. Maggert scored when Hap took the throw-in, and heaved to the suburbs in an effort to cut Abstein off at second. Ellis and Moore batted in vain.

Hits by Page, Perritt, Metzger and Maggert gave the Angels their final in the eighth.

A heavy bombardment in the eighth yielded the Pussies only one run. Wildcat Rader tripled, and scored on Meloan's single. Molly was out stealing. Borton doubled, and Dillon chased five pitchers out to warm up. The sight of this prospective competition electrified Poll, and he fanned Wilhoit for the third out after Hosp had flied to center. Poll also struck out the only three men to face him in the ninth, making four in a row and a very fine finish. Clarence Smith was sent in to bat for Hitt in the ninth. There were loud cries for Speck Harkness. Smith was one of the three who struck out.

MORNING GAME.

Chech allowed only seven hits, but there was a strain of wildness in the earlier part of his performance that kept him in trouble. Meloan's walk and stolen base in the first developed into a run on Kane's hit. Chech passed four men in the fourth, forcing in a run. Carlisle's timely hit scored two more. After these happenings, Charley allowed but one Pussy to reach third.

Little Eva Meek stole the keystone sack in the second. This calls for an explanation. There happened to be a man on third at the time, and Elliott dropped the pitch. By the time he recovered the ball he didn't dare to make the throw.

But Meek's burst of speed didn't get the Angels anything, they not scoring until the fourth. Hits by Abstein and Johnson, an error by McArdle and Meek's sacrifice fly produced two runs in that inning.

ALL UP.

The defense of the Pussies went to smash in the fifth. Klepfer cut loose a wild pitch, sending Elliott from the field a cripple. McDonnell bumped into McArdle, jarring loose an easy fly by Ellis that Honus had nabbed, and a burst of Klepfer's speed got away from Lewis, who was now catching. There also were a few hits, a couple of walks and three runs. Sharp hitting and bum work in the field enabled the Angels to pick up two more in the seventh.

The fact that Finney's head was not working robbed Wolter of the undying fame of making a home run inside the Venice grounds. After Meek had singled in the seventh, Wolter stabbed a low fly to short center. Kane made a desperate try, the ball striking him on the knee and bounding clear over to the extreme corner of left field. McDonnell's relay came in high, and Hogan made no effort to tag Wolter at the plate. Finney called Wolter out, but just why may never be known.

Metzger and Ellis hit the ball for another run in the eighth, but not much effort was made to molest the Pussies in the ninth.

Don't overlook the horrors to be perpetrated today.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN AUTO SMASHUP.

BABY HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM BEING CRUSHED BENEATH WRECKED CAR.

In a collision between two automobiles at Washington and Hope streets, last night, two women were painfully injured and a baby narrowly escaped being thrown under one of the wrecked machines.

The first automobile was owned and driven by Dr. A. Clark, No. 2011 Eighth avenue, who was accompanied by his wife. The other car was occupied by James Mulligan, a mailer of No. 418 East Forty-eighth street, who was taking his wife and baby for an airing.

As the machines approached the corner at right angles, a misunderstanding regarding the right of way is said to have occurred, with the result that the cars came together with considerable force.

Mrs. Mulligan was cut on the head in trying to shield her baby and subsequently taken to the Pacific Hospital, where her injuries were pronounced not serious.

Mrs. Clark was thrown against the wind-shield and also was cut on the head by pieces of broken glass. She was taken home and treated by her husband.

The men escaped with a few slight bruises.

JEVNE'S
A Matter of Choice
Duality finds expression in every question and phase of life. We find "good and bad," "right and wrong"—and so on, ad. lib., throughout the entire schedule of known things and thoughts.
An example of this duality is seen in the fact that some people are strongly averse to running an account of any kind or description whatsoever, while others find an account with the grocer, butcher, etc., to be the one way of keeping an accurate tab on housekeeping expenditure.
Whilst the paying of cash is a most commendable characteristic, it stands to reason that it is very often the direct cause of unnecessary inconvenience. An account run on strictly monthly lines is almost equivalent to cash payment, and the time and temper its saves cannot possibly be expressed in words.
We are pleased to open accounts with responsible parties desiring that convenience because we know that an account is of considerable service and usefulness to the busy housewife. The Credit Department will take care of every inquiry.

SIX-YEAR FIGHT FOR FOOT LOST.

Santa Fe Engineer Gives Up Battle to Save It.

Y.M.C.A. Officers Resign; Leave Empty Chairs.

War Ends Honeymoon of Notable Pasadenans.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Aug. 31.—Although he fought for six years to save his foot from amputation, George P. Luce, former Santa Fe engineer, has lost his long fight against becoming a permanent cripple. His foot was taken off Saturday at the Angelus Hospital in Los Angeles.

Luce was in charge of a Santa Fe engine which was derailed at the Union-street crossing in Pasadena in 1908. His foot was injured in the accident and physicians recommended that it be amputated. He refused to sumbit to the operation and for six years he remained steadfast in his determination in spite of the fact that the wound never healed.

Through six years of suffering he battled against losing his foot and only last week made up his mind that the fight was hopeless and agreed to the operation, which was successfully performed. He is a brother of Mrs. Ella Parker of No. 70 North Pasadena avenue, who reports that he is out of danger and the doctors state that he will recover.

MANY RESIGNATIONS.

Considerable comment has been occasioned over the many resignations in the employed force at the local Y.M.C.A. General Secretary W. H. Day and Assistant Secretary J. Landgrum Graham will leave the association, their resignations taking effect tomorrow. A week ago Dr. James A. B. Scherer, a member of the board of trustees, suddenly resigned, giving as the reason press of personal business. Dr. Scherer is president of Throop Institute.

In the last twelve months there have been at least eleven changes in the employed force and it is expected that the State organization will be called upon to suggest successors to General Secretary Day and Assistant Secretary Graham. The former leaves to become identified with railroad Y.M.C.A. work, and Graham has gone into business in Los Angeles.

MEGAPHONE ENTHUSIASTS.

Not content with sending out a battalion of High School boys, holding street meetings, organizing by precincts and holding precinct meetings, Pasadena prohibition enthusiasts have adopted a new and novel method of calling attention to their campaign for a dry State. Members who possess automobiles have been impressed into service Sundays and with megaphones are shouting their cause in the ears of autoists on the boulevards.

Yesterday the first machines were sent out from Pasadena and took the fight right into the camp of the enemy on the road to Arcadia. As they pass automobiles the megaphone artist cries out to vote for "California dry," and other phrases.

WAR ENDS HONEYMOON.

Instead of continuing a honeymoon in Europe, J. S. Torrance, after whom the manufacturing town of Torrance was named, and his bride, who was Mrs. Helena Childs, will return to this city Tuesday.

When they surprised their friends in June and were hurriedly married, leaving the same evening for a honeymoon journey over Europe, they intended to remain in Europe for a year. They were caught in the war zone at the outbreak of hostilities and immediately turned about and caught the first steamer for America. They are both socially prominent.

ASTRONOMER IMPROVES.

Prof. George E. Hale, the noted astronomer, who has been ill at the Pasadena Hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis several weeks ago, has so far recovered that he will be removed to his home this week.

Dr. Hale is in charge of the work of Carnegie Observatory on Mt. Wilson. His wife, who was visiting in the East when he was taken sick, rushed across the continent and was at his bedside when the operation was performed.

BRIDGE IS SAFE.

That the bridge across the Arroyo Seco at Devil's Gate is safe for travel since two additional supports have been erected, is the official verdict of the County Engineer following an inspection after complaints had been made that the structure was weak. Plans, however, have been prepared for a reinforced concrete bridge to replace the present structure, which was weakened by the rains of last February.

Rev. Bryant Wilson has submitted his resignation as assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church to accept the pastorate of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Long Beach.

Yesterday was observed as a day of prayer by the Salvation Army, following orders received from Gen. Bramwell Booth that Salvationists all over the world would pray for peace Sunday.

Benjamin Brown, who is the Pasadena representative of art at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, has recovered from a severe illness and will leave for the exposition city to resume his duties.

Miss Mazie Lynch, about whom some concern was felt, as she was caught in the war zone in Europe, has cabled that she has arrived in London from Paris.

MORE MACADAMIZING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COVINA, Aug. 30.—Pearson & Anderson of Los Angeles have been awarded the contract for the laying in macadam of School, Cottage and Italia streets. The work will be begun as soon as the contractors can get their outfit on the ground. Puente street for a distance of one mile has just been finished in macadam, with cement gutters and curbs. The City Trustees told Contractor J. O. Stanford that they considered this street the best work that has been done in the city. The new ornamental lights on Citrus avenue and Badillo street will be ready for use in about one month.

BODY FOUND IN KELP BED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, Aug. 30.—Two fishermen on the rocks between Laguna Beach and Corona Del Mar today found the body of a man floating in the kelp, and with a boat secured at Laguna Beach the body was brought ashore. Indications are that the man had been dead for a week.

The body has not been identified. The man was about 30 years old. He has black hair and about a week's growth of black beard. He wore a dark serge suit and light tan shoes. There is nothing to show whether death was by accident or intent.

The body was brought to Santa Ana by Coroner Winbigler.

IMPERIAL CROPS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, Aug. 30.—The cotton situation in the lower part of the valley in the vicinity of Calexico has been relieved by the securing of private funds for the use of the cotton growers in picking their cotton. A large amount of capital has been deposited in the Calexico banks to be loaned to the cotton growers on what is considered reasonable terms under the present situation of the cotton market.

After repeated efforts to secure money from the banks of Los Angeles and after as many failures on account of the European situation, K. Arkalean, a well-known rancher-capitalist and owner of large property in the valley, was induced to come to the rescue to the extent of $75,000. It is intimated that as much more may be had from the same source, as it is needed.

In most cases the terms on which this money is to be loaned will enable the growers of this section to pick and gin their crops, and also hold them till a better price may be obtained. Enabling the growers to do this is considered the means of the salvation of the present cotton crop.

HOG INSURANCE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HEBER, Aug. 30.—Inquiries are being made daily of the stockmen as to where stock hogs and brood hogs may be purchased. There has of late been an immense immigration of hogs into the valley and this fact has given new life and impetus to the industry. The ranchers are once more thoroughly convinced that they can with safety re-embark in the business of general hog raising, and they are looking to absolute success in it from the present time.

It appears now that the hogs may be made absolutely immune from cholera, and under this condition the industry of hog raising may prove the most lucrative of all of the lesser valley industries. It is now also certain that several plants for the manufacture of the serum will be established in the valley as soon as the arrangements for them can be made. The cost of immunizing all pigs is to be looked upon from now on as simply an insurance policy, which will guarantee the hog-raiser that his herds will be practically free from the ravages of cholera.

ALFALFA PRICES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BRAWLEY, Aug. 30.—Valley ranchers who have larger quantities of alfalfa hay on hand (and that means practically all of them,) than they have known what to do with, are smiling at the prospective advance in price and the larger demand that seems to be close at hand. Judging from the many inquiries concerning it alfalfa hay will be in strong demand by the coming fall, with excellent prices prevailing.

The demand will be started locally within the next thirty days by the enormous development work that will start in the north end of the valley soon. It is expected also that there will be a strong European demand for Coast hay in the near future. Altogether the ranchers are feeling much more cheerful over the alfalfa situation.

BUTTER FAT IMPROVES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

IMPERIAL, Aug. 30.—The dairymen of the valley have received a 2-cent advance for their butter fat and it has brought new life to their depressed spirits. Taken into consideration the daily output of butter from the Imperial Valley it will be readily seen that this small advance even means a great deal to the butter industry here as a whole.

It means at least an advance of from $12,000 to $15,000 a month to be distributed among the butter producers of the valley, and this in real, much-needed cash. This is the first benefit to the Imperial Valley from the European war. England will have to depend on the United States and Canada for her supply of butter until the war cloud lifts. Unquestionably the prices for butter fat will rise higher from time to time.

The escrow and title work of the California Title Guaranty Company at 315 West 5th street, ground floor of Metropolitan building at main entrance, has stood the test for more than thirty years.—[Advertisement.

FALLS DOWN STAIRS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 30.—Merton P. Wood, a professional dancer, presently engaged at Hotel del Coronado, fell down the steps to the entrance of the hotel and broke his hip bone today. Wood had just received a telegram to the effect that his mother was dying in New York. It was his anxiety to start to his mother's bedside that was the cause of his accident. Wood is well known in Southern California, especially in Los Angeles.

LABORERS DESTITUTE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 30.—The West Coast Engineering Company has withdrawn from the State highway work, near Los Alamos, and 135 laborers have been left in camp in destitute circumstances. Dist.-Atty. E. W. Squier has been appealed to and is now in conference with the State Highway Commission and the State Labor Bureau. The provision dealers in the vicinity of the camp have refused to supply the men and it is said they are suffering from hunger.

New Church Dedicated With Impressive Service.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 30.—Facing imprisonment for an indefinite period in Berlin, without friends or funds, Miss Mae Franklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Franklin of the Hatfield apartments, this city, escaped from the German capitol on a military train and arrived here today.

Miss Franklin was studying music in Berlin when war was declared, and all efforts to reach her parents by mail or cable were fruitless. All outgoing transportation was halted. After a week's wait Miss Franklin learned that she could escape to the seaboard through Holland on a military train.

It took two days for the trip, which in times of peace consumed but a few hours. From Holland passage was secured by the young lady to Liverpool, where she secured passage to Montreal on the Mergantic, a White Star liner, which made the entire journey minus the usual lights at night.

Miss Franklin reports that Americans are being treated with respect in Germany with the exception of when they are mistaken for Englishmen. She says they are given three marks, or about seventy-two cents in American money, per day for living expenses, which will buy more there than here.

GAS CONVENTION.

The twenty-second annual convention of the Pacific Coast Gas Association will be held at the Virginia hotel, this city, September 15-18. C. S. Vance, of Los Angeles will preside.

Addresses of welcome will be delivered by the Mayor and P. E. Hatch, president of the Long Beach Consolidated Gas Company. Others who will take part in the four days' programme are C. B. Babcock, R. J. Thompson, H. P. Pitts, H. R. Basford, C. P. Cutten, P. C. Wickersham, B. S. Pederson, D. E. Keppelman, J. D. Hackstaff, A. W. Cash, C. A. Luckenbach, R. C. Powell, H. W. Burkhart and J. Clements.

CHURCH DEDICATED.

With prominent clergymen of the denomination present and the pastors of the various churches of the city guests of honor, dedicatory services of the new Burnett Baptist church recently completed at Twenty-second street and Olive avenue, were held this afternoon.

The new edifice cost $7500 and is of frame construction. Mission style architecture was followed.

Among those who took part were Rev. G. D. Knights, pastor of the First Baptist Church; Dr. G. M. Lehigh, of Huntington Park; Dr. A. M. Petty, of Los Angeles in charge of the American Baptist Home Missionary work; Rev. A. P. Clark, former pastor, and Rev. C. J. Coulter, the present pastor.

REALTY TRANSACTION.

The passing of the ownership of the handsome Maryland apartments, No. 535 West Ocean avenue, from Mrs. J. P. Curtis to R. B. Campbell, of Ontario, yesterday, constituted the most important realty transaction of this city in several months. Eighty-thousand dollars is the valuation at which the property changed hands.

FLIES UPSIDE DOWN.

Aviator Who Fell in Water Before, This Time Makes a Success of It.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Aug. 30.—Thomas J. Hill, the young upside-down aviator, this afternoon delighted several thousand spectators with a daring flight over the surf in his monoplane. He made several circuits around the bath-house and amusement pier and then ascended and flew for quite a distance with his head hanging. He did several tango dips and then flew back to his hangar in the back country. Last time he did this stunt he fell in the water because the crowd did not give him room in which to land.

BEACH TANGO.

The other attraction of the afternoon was the beach tango, in which prettty bathing girls contested. The dance was held on the hard smooth beach inside of a roped enclosure, but owing to the vast crowd and the threatening surf, the dance was rather crowded. Some of the fair bather-dancers were splashed and others were stepped on by the crowd. A large number of persons witnessed the unique event, which is the first to be held here.

ACCIDENT IN SCOTLAND.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLAREMONT, Aug. 30.—News has been received of an automobile accident which befell a number of Claremont citizens near Glasgow, Scotland. Mrs. Mary R. Darling and her son, Kenneth, accompanied by Dr. Phoebe Estelle Spaulding of Pomona College, Miss Jessie Greyson, a teacher, of Claremont and Mrs. Darling of Los Angeles, were enjoying a six weeks' automobile tour of the British Isles. One-half of their trip had been completed when their automobile ran into a loaded coal cart and all of the occupants of the machine were thrown out and more or less injured. Mrs. Darling sustained a broken wrist and her cousin, of Los Angeles, had several bones broken in her hand and also several severe cuts about the face. Neither Dr. Spaulding nor Miss Greyson suffered any broken bones, but the whole party is confined in the Victoria Infirmary in Glasgow.

CITY INSPECTOR EASILY CLEARED.

CHARGES NOT SUBSTANTIATED WHEN CASE COMES TO TRIAL BY COUNCIL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 29.—Fred E. Alford, city inspector of plumbing and electrical wiring, was completely exonerated by the City Council, sitting as a jury to hear charges of incompetency and partiality against him, at the Council Chamber of the City Hall last night.

Following the stormy session on last Monday night when Alford's deputy, M. D. James, was charged with inefficiency by E. A. Parkford, who petitioned the Council in writing for his removal and verbal charges were made against the inspector by others, the Council set last evening for a hearing of Alford's case, stating that all charges must be in writing.

None were forthcoming and while several plumbers were present with statements to the effect that Alford was both incompetent and biased, no proof was offered to bear out these statements and the result was the exoneration of the inspector.

Alford was represented at the hearing by an attorney. While the City Attorney appeared for the Council. A communication indorsing Alford and expressing confidence in his ability and integrity, signed by most of the business and professional men of Ontario, was presented.

The Shumate grocery at No. 128, and the Favorite Cafe at No. 13 North Euclid avenue, were entere by burglars last night, but nothin of value was taken. The jobs were discovered by Night Patrolman George Emmons before midnight.

MUSICIAN GOES EAST.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, Aug. 30.—Ernest J. Hesser, who has been the director of the Methodist Church choir of this city for a year, also superintendent of music in the Pasadena public schools, has accepted a position as head of the music department of the Northwestern Ohio Normal School at Bowling Green, O., and will take up his duties there immediately. During the summer months Hesser has been teaching in the summer school at the Winona Chautauqua at Winona, Ind. In addition to being a musical educator of experience, his baritone voice brought him into prominence in musical circles of Southern California. Mrs. Hesser and her son, Jamie, will leave this evening to join him in the East.

McKittrick.

NEW HIGHWAY ROUTES PLANNED IN OIL FIELD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

M'KITTRICK, Aug. 30.—A movement looking to the construction of a lateral of the California State highway from McKittrick, where it would connect with the county highway from Bakersfield to Santa Margarita, is meeting with great favor among autoists and others.

The proposed road to Santa Margarita would constitute a short and advantageous route, not only from Bakersfield, but also from Taft, Maricopa, Fellows, Belridge and Lost Hills.

The matter of the thoroughfare from McKittrick to Santa Margarita is now under consideration by the Highway Commission and the Kern county Supervisors.

The distance from McKittrick, which is situated forty-two miles west of Bakersfield, to Santa Margarita, is seventy-five miles, due west, and from Bakersfield it is from ten to twenty miles shorter than from any other feasible point, contend the advocates of the proposition. Leaving McKittrick the lateral would pass through Reward, Simmler, La Panza and Pozo, traversing also the famous Carissa Plains.

Reward is three miles distant from McKittrick, Simmler twenty-seven, La Panza, forty-two; Pozo, fifty-seven, while as stated, Santa Margarita is seventy-five. San Luis Obispo, Pismo Beach, Morro, Paso Robles and other points on the coast, favorite resorts for summer tourists, may be easily reached by connecting roads.

The building of this highway would be of inestimable benefit to the country between here and Santa Margarita, as the Carissa Plains country is susceptible of wonderful development, owing to its great agricultural possibilities. It has made some remarkable strides within the past few years, and within its borders there are some very large ranches, producing vast quantities of wheat, barley and other grain crops, while thousands of cattle and sheep graze on the plains.

Carissa ranch comprises 20,000 acres, the San Juan, 60,000; the La Panza, 22,000; the Chicote, 17,000; the McDonald, 15,000; the Cavanagh, 5000. It is estimated that the production of wheat and barley on Carissa Plains this year will aggregate nearly 20,000 sacks.

Besides these large ranches there are many small ones and a number of new homes have been established during the present year. The road from McKittrick to the coast is in good condition, but the construction of the lateral would improve travel facilities and afford a splendid route for those wishing to reach various places on the coast.
